SENATE BEGINS ITS SEARCH FOR TARIFF LOBBY IN CAPITAL

Senator Bacon, of Georgia, One of the First Senators Called by the Probe to Answer Questions

ALL SENATORS TO BE GRILLED BY PROBERS

President Wilson Is Believed to Have Given Committee Information and May Not Testify Publicly

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The first senators to testify today at the senate's investigation of the charges that a lobby is working against the tariff bill, declared they knew of no improper influences being exerted; no use of money and had not themselves attempted to improperly influence another senators.

All admitted having talked with manufacturers interested in the tariff, having heard arguments and protests but all considered such proceedings strictly legitimate and none considered the men with whom they talked as "lobbyists."

Senator Ashurst said, however, that "a man named McMurray," had been attempting improperly to influence senators against the movement to cancel certain Indian contracts by which McMurray is said to stand to receive $3,000,000. Senator Borah referred also to "the man Senator Ashurst mentioned."

Just before the committee began taking testimony, Chairman Overman and Senator Reed conferred with President Wilson. It was said the president would not be called before the committee but would transmit any information he might have on the subject of a "lobby."

BACON CALLED.

Senators Ashhurst, Bacon, Bankhead and Borah were the first asked to appear before the committee.

Before the investigating committee met, Senators Overman and Reed went to the White House and had a long conference with President Wilson.

Both declined to talk of their visit, but the president and senators have made suggestions to the senators which would be developed in the course of the inquiry.

He declined to say what they were. The senators did not ask President Wilson to appear and it was generally regarded at the capitol and at the White House that the president would not.

It was said at the White House that the president practically had placed all his information of the lobby in the hands of Senators Overman and Reed, and the impression prevailed that later the president might furnish a list of names of those whom he believed to be lobbying against the tariff bill.

When the hearing opened some newspaper photographers ordered the committee members around in a businesslike way while a photo was taken. Senators Bacon and Ashurst moved aside.

BACON AVOIDS PHOTOGRAPHER.

"I don't care to get into such a picture," said Senator Bacon.

Senator Ashurst testified he was not interested directly or indirectly financially in the production, manufacture or sale of an article mentioned in the tariff bill or any other bill pending before congress, nor had he sought to influence any other senator.

The committee then made the first effort to secure a list of so-called "lobbyists" or persons who have "talked with senators" about the tariff bill.

Senator Ashurst said he had not kept a record of those who had talked with him, but he was prepared to give names of all he could remember.

The first was "William Kettner, of California," who had asked him to find out whether there would be any further reduction in the tariff on lemons and fruits. The senator asked Chairman Simmons, of the finance committee, and the latter said he thought the Underwood rates would stand.

"But I told him," said Senator Ashurst, "I wanted it distinctly understood that in asking the question I was not urging that the tariff be not reduced."

A Mr. McClure, representing western sheep men, and a Mr. Tomlinson, representing cattle men, Senator Ashurst said, called upon him and by legitimate argument sought to show him that the sheep and cattle business would be hurt by the bill.

"Nothing improper was said to me by these men and what they did every American citizen has a right to do—talk to their senator about their business affairs," said he. No one, he declared, had tried improperly to influence his action.

ONE SMOOTH LOBBYIST.

Senator Ashurst said he did believe, however, that a man named McMurray" had been attempting to influence improperly the action of senators with respect to preventing the cancellation of certain contracts by McMurray held with Cherokee Indians for the sale of land whereby he would receive $3,500,000.

"He is the smoothest lobbyist I have ever seen," added the senator.

"He could carry a bundle of eels upstairs without dropping a single one."

Senator Ashurst said he considered any man or woman a "lobbyist," who "button-holed senators or members of congress and urged them to vote for certain measures or suffer reprisals in the elections."

"I don't consider a man a lobbyist who files legitimate arguments with congress about matters in which he is interested," said the senator.

BACON TESTIFIES.

Senator Bacon, who followed Senator Ashurst, said that "out of an abundance of caution," he wanted to tell the committee that he owned a small farm in Georgia on which some articles might be raised that were affected by the tariff. A sewer pipe factory, a street railway, a gas company and an electric company were other industries in which Senator Bacon said he had some interest.

"I don't believe any of them are affected by any of this legislation," he

COL. W. A. HUFF WILL PROBABLY BE GIVEN SENTENCE TUESDAY

Judge Grubb Will Confer With Col. Huff's Counsel in Atlanta Before Final Decision in the Case

TRIAL FAIR AND JUST, ASSERTS COL. HUFF

Former Mayor of Macon Unruffled When Adjudged Guilty of Contempt of Court for Letters Written Speer

(By Associated Press.)

MACON, Ga., June 2.—Colonel W. A. Huff, former mayor of Macon and one time the city's wealthiest citizen, was today adjudged guilty of contempt of court by Judge W. I. Grubb, of the Northern district of Alabama, presiding, in the United States court here, Judge Emory Speer being disqualified.

Colonel Huff says:

"The verdict is what I expected. At the time I sent Judge Emory Speer those letters last summer I had a vague idea that I was committing contempt of court. However, I was not as familiar then as I am now with the law on contempt. I wrote those letters solely and simply for the purpose of telling Judge Speer, man to man, what I thought about him and the way he had handled my bankruptcy case. There was never any intention on my part to bring the judiciary into disrepute.

Having been found guilty by a tribunal which I consider absolutely fair and impartial, I am satisfied with the decision, and will accept without a murmur whatever punishment may be meted out to me."

Judge Grubb will confer with Colonel Huff's counsel, Attorney General T. S. Felder, in Atlanta, tomorrow in regard to the sentence to be imposed.

"Not Here to See Me," Declares Mr. Felder

Attorney General Thomas S. Felder, stated Monday morning that he had received word from Judge W. I. Grubb, of Birmingham, Ala., who presided over the Huff contempt case that he would be in Atlanta Tuesday.

Mr. Felder said that Judge Grubb was coming here on other business than conferring with him and that he had in mind no conference regarding the case of Colonel W. A. Huff, of Macon, Ga., in the verdict of contempt against Judge Emory Speer, of the United States court.

HUGHES IS CHAIRMAN OF EDUCATION COMMITTEE

Georgians Head Educational Committees in Both Houses of Congress Now

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Selections of Democrats by the ways and means committee for the majorities of the house committees were presented today to the caucus for ratification.

On the banking and currency committee, which will frame the currency measure, the administration will insist upon Representative Carter Glass, of Virginia, as chairman, and only four other members who were on the committee in the last house remain.

They are Representatives Kenyon, of Indiana; Brown, of West Virginia; Bulkeley, of Ohio, and Neely, of Kansas.

Nine new Democrats get places.

Of the new committee on good roads, Representative Shackleford, of Missouri, is given the chairmanship.

HUGHES CHAIRMAN EDUCATION.

A free for all contest for the chairmanship of the education committee was won by Representative Hughes, of Georgia. Representative Hobson, who could have had the place, preferring to remain on the naval affairs committee.

The make-up of the labor committee is greatly changed. Representative Lewis, of Maryland, succeeded Secretary of Labor Wilson as chairman. Representative Maher, of New York, becomes ranking member of the committee and also becomes chairman of the new committee on expenditures in the department of labor.

This gives the Georgia delegation the chairmanship of educational committees in both houses. Senator Hoke Smith is chairman of senate committee on education and labor.

The members of the Georgia delegation in the house were assigned to the following committees by the ways and means committee, which assignments will be approved by the Democratic caucus this afternoon:

Edwards—Rivers and harbors.

Goldenberry—Public buildings, revision of laws, expenditures state department.

Crisp—Pensions, elections and election president, vice president and representatives in congress.

Adams—Interstate and foreign commerce, chairman.

Howard—Military affairs.

Bartlett—Appropriation.

Lee—Agriculture.

Tribble—Naval affairs.

Bell—Postoffice and post roads.

Hardwick—Coinage, weights and measures, chairman; rules.

Walker—Foreign relations.

Hughes—Education, chairman.

The delegation as a whole did not fare as well as it did in the last congress, although again it has been increased by the addition of one new member through the creation of another congressional district. The state has no representation on the ways and means committee, which it enjoyed in the last house.

AGREEMENT REACHED ON THE CREMATORY; CITY PAYS $260,000

This Settlement, Reached Between Finance Committee and Destructor Company, Goes to Council Monday

COUNCIL'S RATIFICATION IS PRACTICALLY CERTAIN

And Mayor Woodward, While Not Absolutely Satisfied, Indicates That He Will Not Continue His Opposition

The finance committee of council and the Destructor company Monday morning reached an agreement on the crematory which council in practically certain to ratify and which it is believed Mayor Woodward will not oppose.

The agrement is as follows:

That the city buy the plant for $260,000; that $125,000 of this amount be paid at once; that the balance, or $135,000, be put in the budget, but held back until the plant has demonstrated to the satisfaction of the city engineer and the members of council that it will burn garbage for 25 cents per ton and fulfill its other guarantees of operation; that if these payments, or either of them, are delayed, the Destructor company is to be paid 7 per cent interest from the date council directed the payments to be made.

GOES TO COUNCIL MONDAY.

The finance committee will report this agreement to council Monday afternoon and ask council to ratify it and direct the committee to write a budget accordingly.

If council ratifies the agreement, which there is little doubt of, then the committee will meet Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock and start to work on the budget, undertaking to have it ready to report to council at an adjourned meeting next Thursday afternoon. In the meantime a new contract will be drawn embodying the terms of the agreement, and will be imparted to council along with the budget. Council will then on Thursday afternoon adopt the budget and the contract, the aldermanic board will meet immediately following the adjournment of council and concur in council's action. Thus the budget and the contract will be ready for Mayor Woodward's approval next Friday morning.

WHAT CITY SAVES.

The original contract, which the supreme court set aside, stipulated that the city should pay $276,000 for the crematory. In getting it for $260,000, the city will save more than the $16,000 difference in price. It will save the interest on deferred payments, which would have amounted to $11,000. It will save $4,500 worth of extra foundation walls which the city would have had to pay for under the original contract, making a total of $31,500.

And in addition to this saving, the city is getting a much better plant than the specifications required. The city engineer required a number of extras which the Destructor company would have refused strenuously, if it had been in a position to protest. But on account of the mayor's opposition the company was forced to yield every point. The result is a plant costing $30,000 more than the specifications contemplated. This is the amount which the company claims it has had to pay for the extras, and the city engineer agrees that the extras have cost approximately $30,000.

So, all in all, the city is something like $60,000 better off than it would have been if the original contract had been carried out.

WHAT MAYOR SAYS.

As said above, Mayor Woodward is virtually satisfied. Members of the finance committee Monday morning said they believed he would be, and later, to a Journal reporter, he plainly intimated that he is.

"I feel this way," said he. "If the city has paid the whole amount, $276,000 for it I think it is too much. It would still be worth the excess to get the precedent established that the city must live within its income. In other words, the decision of the supreme court is the victory I was fighting for and the one I regard of most importance. If the decision will not only hold the council down to the city's income during my administration, but during all future administrations. The constitution of Georgia plainly says that a municipality shall not incur debts in any year greater than the amount of its revenue for that year, except by bond issues, and, as we all know, the method of issuing bonds is made very strict. This provision doesn't apply to Atlanta alone. It applies to every municipality in the state. Atlanta's city councils for years have been ignoring the constitutions. Or, to state it more correctly, they have been evading it by a subterfuge. And the result would have been bankruptcy if the practice hadn't been stopped. Look at the debts handed over to my administration from last year—over $500,000 worth. If the thing had been kept up, it wouldn't have been long before it would have taken every dollar of the city's annual tax to pay back debts. So, as I say, the supreme court decision, which forever puts a stop to this practice, is well worth the excess price we are paying for the crematory."

As to the price agreed on by the finance committee and the company, Mayor Woodward said: "While I think $260,000 is still too much to pay for the plant, I also think this: The Destructor company undoubtedly has built the best plant in Atlanta that it ever put up, and it has built it in less time than it took to build smaller plants in other cities. So I think these two things which are worth a good deal, were accomplished by my fight. My opposition certainly forced them to build an A No 1 plant, and forced them to built it without wasting any time."

JULIAN HAWTHORNE MAY GET HIS PAROLE SOON

Washington (D. C.) Herald Says He Will Be Released Between July 28-Sept. 1

According to the Washington (D. C.) Herald, of May 30, Julian Hawthorne will be released from the Atlanta federal prison on parole some time between July 28 and September 1, his parole application having been acted upon favorably by the parole board at its last meeting.

Julian Hawthorne is the son of Nathaniel Hawthorne, the great American author. He is an auhtor of note himself, having written, among other books, a standard text book on American literature.

He was convicted of conspiracy in connection with the sale of mining stock and sentenced to serve a term in the federal prison.

Stork Pays Visit to Weather Man and Now The Weather's Dandy

It is certainly up to Atlanta's weather man to dish out the best wares he has in stock in the future.

He says so himself, for there's a reason. The stork brought the reason in the shape of a little baby girl to the home of Weather Man C. F. von Herrmann, 83 West Fifth street, last Sunday a week ago. Her name is Evyline.

Evyline's father says that the weather has been entirely too hot for his little daughter, and that he'll just have to stop it. The thermometer registered ninety-two degrees Saturday, the highest yet recorded this year.

Sunday's temperature was only eighty-six, and according to Mr. von Herrmann's prediction, the mercury will not get above ninety during the day Monday. At 12:30 o'clock Monday afternoon it registered eighty-four degrees.

"Fair weather is the forecast for Tuesday," said Mr. von Herrmann. "It will be pretty hot, too, but I'll try to have the mercury kept down as low as possible, for the latest addition to the von Herrmann family doesn't like hot weather at all."

INTERIOR SECRETARY CAN REMOVE TRIBAL COUNCIL

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The district court of appeals today upheld the legal right of the secretary of the interior to remove members of the tribal council of the Osage Indians for cause. The case arose through former Secretary Fisher's removal of tribal chiefs in connection with oil land leases he alleged had been made to the disadvantage of the Indians.

NEGRO GIRL IS ARRESTED IN PHAGAN MURDER CASE

"I Am Going to Hang and I Don't Know a Thing About It," Shouts Viola McKnight When Questioned by Solicitor

Viola McKnight, who lives in the rear of 351 Pulliam street, a negro girl, is said to have entered the Phagan mystery in a sensational matter. The woman was brought to Solicitor Dorsey's office Monday afternoon by Detectives Starnes and Campbell, who are working exclusively on the Phagan mystery, and was examined by the solicitor.

The girl was then carried to police headquarters, where she was docketed and the charge of suspicion placed against her name.

The solicitor and the detectives refuse to discuss the girl's connection with the Phagan mystery.

The woman was excited and hysterical and continued to shout: "I am going to hang, and I don't know a thing about it."

Still weeping and shouting that she was going to hang, although innocent, the woman was led shortly after 2 o'clock, to a cell at police headquarters.

When the woman first went to Solicitor Dorsey's office, the officers had with her a negro boy, whose name is unknown. The boy was released after the examination.

VOLS-CRACKER GAMES ARE UP TO KAVANAUGH

Bill Smith Refuses to Play Wednesday and Nashville Refuses to Play Monday

(By Associated Press.)

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 2.—The present series between the Atlanta and Nashville baseball teams will, in all probability, be put up to President Kavanaugh for decision.

Manager Smith, of Atlanta, says his team will not stay and play Wednesday and President Hirsig, of Nashville, says his team will not play today.

Smith plans to leave Tuesday night and will not change them unless by order of the president of the Atlanta club.

The squabble arises over the Sunday game. Atlanta was scheduled here Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Manager Smith wrote to move up each game a day.

He claims to have a letter from President Hirsig agreeing outright to Smith's proposition, but suggested Sunday, Tuesday and Wednesday would be better, the letter adding that this could be arranged after the Atlanta team gets here.

Hirsig called off today's game. Smith says he will go to the park today and claim the game. Hirsig says he will do the same Wednesday. Late this morning this question was unsettled.

LAST DAY GRACE CAN ANSWER WIFE'S SUIT

Mrs. Grace's Suit for Divorce in Philadelphia Has Not Been Answered Yet

PHILADELPHIA, June 2.—This was the last day upon which Eugene H. Grace, of Atlanta, Ga., could answer to the suit for divorce filed here by his wife, Daisy Ulrich Opie Grace, who alleges cruel and barbarous treatment. Mrs Grace was acquitted in Atlanta last summer on a charge of having shot her husband.

Whether Grace does or does not make answer to the suit today, a master will be appointed to take testimony. Grace, who is supposed to be at his mother's home, in Newnan, Ga., has filed a counter suit for divorce in the Georgia courts.

AMERICAN BANKERS MAKE BIG LOANS IN MEXICO

New York, London and Berlin Financiers Make Loans to Government and Road

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, June 2.—A syndicate of New York, London and Berlin bankers purchased today from the National Railways of Mexico an issue of $26,730,000 6 per cent two-year secured notes. This was part of an authorized issue of $29,160,000 and provided funds for the payment of $10,000,000 of the company's notes due today. These notes, it was announced, would be paid immediately upon presentation.

The new issue also provides funds for the retirement of $12,000,00 in notes due November 15 next, and for other requirements of the road. The notes, it is announced, will be offered in New York and London shortly, probably at 97 cents.

Arrangements have been completed for the $50,000,000 loan to the Mexican government, exclusive of the railway's financing, and it was expected that details would be announced later today. The loan will be in the form of ten-year 5 per cent bonds.

MARY PHAGAN MET DEATH ON FIRST FLOOR, IS CLAIM

Defense Will Endeavor to Show That Conley Struck Her in Head and Threw Her Down Elevator Shaft

ELEVATOR WAS NOT MOVED APRIL 26, IT IS CONTENDED

Blood Spots on Second Floor Explained by Fact That Employes Frequently Cut Fingers—Theory in Detail

From apparently reliable authority it was learned Monday that the theory to be advanced in defense of Leo M. Frank, the pencil factory superintendent, who has been indicted for the murder of Mary Phagan, will be that James Conley, the negro sweeper, and he alone, killed the girl and hid her body in the factory basement.

Notwithstanding Luther Z. Rosser, chief counsel for Frank, maintains his sphinxlike attitude and declines to discuss the theory of the defense, it is understood that the arguments in Frank's favor will be based upon the idea that Conley was without assistance in the commission of the crime and that Frank had no knowledge whatever of it.

The defense will, it is said, take the position that Mary Phagan was killed on the first floor of the factory at the foot of the stairs where the negro admits he was in hiding. The suggestion of the girl having been killed on the second floor, as declared by Conley in his affidavit of confession, will, it is said, be ridiculed.

It will be contended that Conley was in hiding on the first floor from about 9 o'clock in the morning, most probably with the intention of robbing some of the women employes who came for their pay.

It will be shown that many of the incidents which the negro swears happened while he was secluded among the boxes in the stairs occurred before Frank went over to Nelson street, and therefore, the negro must be lying when he says that he met the superintendent at the corner of Nelson and Forsyth streets and followed him back to the factory sometime between 10:30 and 11 o'clock.

The several different versions of the negro's story will be cited to show that he began by lying and only made admissions that he had knowledge of the crime when he was caught in lies. The claim will be set up that the negro is very cunning, had a perfect knowledge of the pencil factory and its operations, and has kept thoroughly posted on everything that has been published about the murder. This will be urged to substantiate the allegation that he has endeavored to make his "confession" fit the facts so far revealed.

ELEVATOR DIDN'T RUN.

But it will be claimed that despite the negro's cunning he has made many palpable misstatements of facts. Not only will it be claimed that the negro was in the factory in hiding long before Frank went to Nelson street, as is indicated by certain incidents described in detail, but it will be contended that contrary to the negro's statement the elevator did not run on Saturday, April 26.

Just how the defense will show this is not known, but that it feels that it can make such a showing and one that will be convincing is admitted by the close friends of Frank.

The negro's statement that he obtained from the cotton room on the second floor a large piece of gunny sack which he tied about the girl's body will be challenged and evidence will be submitted to show that on the fatal Saturday there were no empty gunny sacks in the cotton room, that the only sacks there were filled with cotton and that these were still in place on the following Monday.

To further substantiate this allegation it will be pointed out that the gunny sack which the negro said he tied about the body and which he declares he threw on the trash pile by the boiler along with the girl's hat and one of her shoes has never been found.

The hat and shoe were discovered on this trash pile a short while after the

Sunday and Saturday Storms Left Trail in Many Sections of Georgia

MACON, Ga., June 2.—Mrs. J. G. Thomas and her son, Jesse C. Thomas, Jr., were instantly killed, and four other members of the family and a neighbor's child injured by a stroke of lightning which struck the Thomas home, two miles north of Jeffersonville, twenty-five miles from Macon, Saturday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock, during a severe electrical storm. The injured are J. C. Thomas, Sr., Elliott Thomas, aged nine years, Louise Thomas, aged twelve, and Morrill Methvin, aged fourteen years.

Because of the fact that telephone and telegraph wires were put out of commission by the storm, news of the tragedy did not reach here until yesterday, when a relative came here to secure the services of an undertaker.

CHATTANOOGA MEETS ALL REUNION EXPENSES

Held in Chickamauga Park Cavalry Maneuvers Will Not Be This Summer

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 2.—When the financial accounts of the executive committee are balanced and the treasurer's report made to the Chattanooga Reunion association, this week, it will be seen that the funds raised by subscription and from concessions will be adequate to meet all expenses the city incurred in entertaining at least 100,000 guests at the Confederate reunion last week.

Orders for summer cavalry maneuvers have been received by Colonel Lockett, commanding the Eleventh United States cavalry stationed at Fort Oglethorpe, and they carry the information that Chattanooga has lost its fight to have these maneuvers held in Chickamauga Park. The troops will assemble at Winchester, Va.

Today North Chattanooga will decide whether it will have an incorporated town or will remain of the county government. The election, called pursuant to requirements of the incorporation bill passed by the legislature some time ago, will be held today. The outlook is that the heaviest vote that has been recorded in several years will be cast.

Five captains, four commanders, four lieutenant commanders and two lieutenants are slated to walk the official plank.

The "plucking board" consists of Rear Admirals Ward, Southerland, Knight, Winslow and Fletcher. The board today called on the bureau of navigation for the records of all officers in the service, and these records, in great measure, will determine the victims. The list will not be announced until the next meeting of the board, June 30.

THOMAS COUNTY CROPS IN SPLENDID SHAPE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
THOMASVILLE, Ga., June 2.—All crops in Thomas county are reported as in fine condition just now, the recent rains, followed by the warm sunshine of the past week making them grow off rapidly.

Never have the crops in this section been cleaner and the fields look as if it would be impossible to find a blade of grass in them. Should the present favorable weather conditions continue there seems every reason to believe some bumper crops will be made in Thomas county this season.

EDITOR FREED FROM CHARGE OF CONTEMPT

William R. Nelson Wins Unanimous Decision From Missouri Supreme Court

(By Associated Press.)
JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., June 2.—The Missouri supreme court today discharged William R. Nelson, owner and editor of the Kansas City Star, from contempt of the Jackson county circuit court. The decision of the supreme court was unanimous.

The supreme court held the article published in the Star contemptuous, but ordered Mr. Nelson discharged from contempt solely on the ground that Circuit Judge Guthrie prepared his opinion the night before the trial for contempt.

Criticism of Court Order Started Contempt Case

(By Associated Press.)
KANSAS CITY, June 2.—William R. Nelson, editor and owner of the Kansas City Star, was found guilty of contempt of court and sentenced to imprisonment of one day in the county jail February 1 last by Circuit Judge Joseph G. Guthrie, who based his action upon the publication in Mr. Nelson's paper of an article which said that Judge Guthrie had refused to dismiss a divorce suit filed in his court until the parties to it, who had settled it out of court and asked dismissal, had paid their attorneys' fees.

Mr. Nelson's attorneys saved the editor from jail by obtaining a writ of habeas corpus. The case was taken to the Kansas City court of appeals and thence to the Missouri supreme court.

C. C. Crow was appointed special commissioner to take testimony. He reported to the court that he found nothing contemptuous in the article for which Mr. Nelson was cited and recommended that the editor be discharged. The commissioner held that the article was "substantially true."

HEALTH CERTIFICATES FOR MARRIAGE LICENSES

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, June 2.—Sex hygiene and the enactment of a law compelling prospective bridegrooms in the nation's capital to procure a certificate of health before a marriage license could be obtained, were subjects for discussion today at a meeting of prominent society women and welfare workers. The meeting was held in the home of Mrs. John Hays Hammond, wife of the mining engineer.

While it was apparent the women were agreed on the compulsory production of the health certificate by the bridegrooms, there was a difference of opinion as to the method of issuing such a certificate.

One group favored the establishment of a medical board in connection with the health department, while others would leave the matter to any reputable physician. Dr. Eleanora Folkmar was on the program as the principal speaker, although Mrs. John A. Logan, Mrs. Howard Bell and other prominent women were prepared to advance their views. Further conferences will be held before recommendations are made to congress.

AGGIE DEPARTMENT NEEDS MORE PUBLICITY NOW

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, June 2.—Secretary Houston thinks the department of agriculture needs more publicity. Wherefore he has determined to start an office of information, the primary object of which will be to disseminate news about the department's activity. He has selected George W. Wharton, of Flushing, L. I., to take charge of the office. Mr. Wharton has had wide experience, it was said at the department, in various kinds of publicity work.

Criticism by Walter H. Page, American ambassador to Great Britain, of the present press notices prepared and sent out by the department, was what led Secretary Houston to change the system. Mr. Paige told the secretary that some one was needed to translate the scientific terminology used by the department's scientists and specialists into clear and popular English and to give them interest.

While the office is to act as a clearing house for department news, bureau chiefs are not to have curtailed the privilege of talking personally to press representatives.

DR. L. C. FURR DEAD OF DUELLING WOUNDS

"Whack" Riorden May Recover, Despite Five Painful Wounds, Doctors Say

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
DALTON, Ga., June 2.—At an early hour Sunday morning, Dr. L. C. Furr, of Crandall, died as a result of the wounds received in his duel with "Whack" Riorden Saturday morning. He lived less than twenty-four hours after the duel. Riorden is said by physicians attending him to have an excellent chance to recover. His wounds—five in number —consist of splintered bones in both arms, a smashed shoulder blade, a flesh wound in the abdomen, and a scalp wound of minor consequence.

Latest information has it that in the duel not a single shot missed. Riorden and Furr are said to have fired at about the same time, Furr receiving the wound which proved fatal. Then, with Riorden's gun failing to work, Furr is said to have advanced, firing as Riorden backed, and all five shots took effect in Riorden, who had fallen over a box in a store at Crandall. Riorden is said to have fired only once.

It is said that prior to the shooting Riorden urged Furr to put up his pistol, insisting that they could settle the difficulty without resorting to weapons. The men had fired at each other the night before, none of the shots taking effect.

Dr. Furr was one of the most prominent physicians of Murray county, possessing decided ability both as a practitioner and surgeon. In addition to this, he was of one of this section's most prominent families. He was a widower and leaves several children, in addition to an extensive friendship.

Riorden also a member of an excellent Murray county family. He is about twenty-six years of age.

How About the Supply of Answer Books?

Ans. The Need of Change will not be used in this Campaign as a prize picture, as we are using it as a sample picture. The titles used last year will not be used this year, as very few, if any of them are in this year's Catalogue. Your friends had better get this year's catalogue if they want to compete.

GRAND JURY READY TO INVESTIGATE CHARGES

Foreman Beck States Position, Probe Awaits Request From Chief Beavers

The Fulton county grand jury will investigate the Felder-Beavers controversy if any of the interested parties ask an investigation, according to Foreman L. H. Beck.

Mr. Beck has not yet been approached on the matter by Chief J. L. Beavers, who has declared that he will ask a grand jury investigation of the charges made against him and his department by Colonel Thomas B. Felder, and unless the police officials make a formal request for an investigation there is little likelihood of the grand jury taking up the matter at the special meeting to be held on Tuesday morning.

The specific object of the meeting, according to the foreman, is the appointment of routine committees, which have not yet been named, owing to the pressure of criminal business, although the jury has only a month more to serve.

Mr. Beck frankly stated his position to The Journal Monday, saying that if the solicitor or any individual member of the jury brings the matter up officially it will be investigated. Also an investigation will be inaugurated, he says, if Chief Beavers or Chief N. A. Lanford request a probe of him as foreman of the jury.

Up to a late hour Monday Chief Beavers had not seen Solicitor Dorsey nor Mr. Beck. The chief stated that he had been extremely busy Monday, but that he would certainly take the matter up during the week.

It is said to be improbable that any effort will be made by the police officials to prosecute Colonel Felder on the charge of attempted bribery, which they have made against him. The entire matter will probably take the form of a probe of the charges against the police by Colonel Felder, and the grand jury will embody a report upon the matter in its presentments when it is discharged by the court early in July.

The disappearance of George W. Gentry, the young stenographer who kept the dictograph records of the conversations in the room in the Williams house, is said to be partially responsible for the failure of Chief Beavers to lay aside other business and consult Solicitor Dorsey about the controversy.

During the week, however, Chief Beavers will hold a conference with the solicitor, regardless of whether or not young Gentry again appears on the scene.

TELLS COURT SHE SOLD RING TO SUPPORT CHILD

Mrs. Agnes Rader, in Divorce Bill, Says Husband Gambled Away Wages

Mrs. Agnes D. Rader, who on Monday filed suit for total divorce from her husband, Frank K. Rader, former Traightsman for J. A. Apperson, told the superior court that she had been forced to pawn her engagement ring in order to support her two-year-old son.

Mrs. Rader, who is twenty-three years old, asserted that her husband, despite the fact that his income was limited, tried to "hit the high spots" and spent his money and time in drinking and gambling.

Through her attorneys, Troutman & Graves, Mrs. Rader asked the court for the custody of her son as well as for a divorce decree.

MRS. STEVENS' JEWELRY NOT BURNED UP

Wade Stevens Says Jewelry and Pistol Had Been Disposed Of

The many rumors and reports about the missing rings and watch of Mrs. Sarah C. Stevens were set at rest Monday by the statement of Wade Stevens to the detectives. The boy declared that he sold the jewelry in Chattanooga more than two years ago gave the names of the purchasers. He admitted, however, that the pistol, which was thought to have been in the burned dwelling, was carried by him to Chattanooga on the last trip and sold for 50 cents.

DR. ARROWWOOD ATTACKED BY FOOTPADS ON SUNDAY

Dr. S. W. Arrowood, of 37 Stonewall street, saved a large sum of money he had on his person, when he yelled lustily for help as he was attacked Sunday night by two footpads near the Walker Street school.

The doctor was walking to his home when he was halted by a voice out of the dark commanding him to hold up his hands. Before he had time to do anything two men were upon him. One struck him with a sandbag, and then Dr. Arrowood yelled for help. This frightened the two highwaymen, who fled. Dr. Arrowood hastened to a nearby telephone and called for the police. He afterwards was taken to the Grady hospital, where his wounds were dressed. It is not believed his injuries are serious. No trace of his assailants was found.

MEDICINE TESTIMONIAL MADE GROUNDS FOR SUIT

Asserting that she was mortified and made ridiculous before her friends by the publication of what she says was a fake testimonial to the curative powers of a certain herb "remedy," Mrs. G. T. O'Neal appeared before a jury in Judge Ellis' division of superior court and asked for $1,999 damages.

She told the court that she had not made a testimonial for the medicine company, but that three were published, making her appear absurd.

IVY STREET LNES TO RUN VIA EDGEWOOD AVE.

Trolley Company Asks Necessary Franchise--Auditorium Is the Objective

The Georgia Railway and Power company has made application to the city council for a franchise to double track Ivy street from the intersection of Ivy and Auburn avenue to Edgewood avenue. The application will be read in council Monday afternoon.

The purpose of the company in laying the new tracks along Ivy street, it is stated, is to extend the present Ivy street trolley service to Edgewood avenue and thence into Marietta and Broad as at present.

Officials of the company stated Monday morning that this change is proposed in order to meet the improvements now in progress on Edgewood avenue and also to relieve the congestion on Peachtree street, where the Ivy street lines now traverse it. In addition, the company has been studying plans to improve the trolley service from the north side of Atlanta to the auditorium-armory on such occasions as grand opera week and other events, and the extension of the Ivy street lines to Edgewood avenue will benefit them to run cars directly from the north side to the auditorium-armory without transferring passengers.

The new territory will increase the population of the city by at least 10,000. A bond issue of $100,000 to be expended in sewers and other improvements is carried in the annexation bill.

THREE NEGROES QUIZZED IN STEVENS FIRE CASE

Detectives Put Suspects Through Close Examination in McDonough Mystery

In an effort to gain a confession in regard to the McDonough road mystery of last Tuesday night, three negro suspects who are held at police station charged with the murder of Mrs. Sarah Stevens and he radopted daughter, Nellie, were put through an examination by the police Monday morning and were later taken to the scene of the crime.

The negroes are Walter Wilkes, who formerly worked for the Stevens family; Ernest Maynard, a half-breed negro, who was once in their employ, and Dan Walker, another negro.

All of these men were arrested Saturday and Sunday. They were confined at the police Monday morning and later will be taken to the scene of the crime.

The negroes were told the definite charge against them. Detectives quizzed them for several hours in the hope of getting some damaging admission.

When the negroes are taken out the McDonough road they will not be told where they are going. Thus will the ashes of the Stevens home come suddenly to their view.

Wade Stevens, son of the dead woman, is still at police station, helping the detectives in their work. He took part in the examination Monday morning. The officers believe that he can do much toward making the negroes talk.

L. G. Self, a neighbor of the Stevens, who testified at the coroner's inquest that he thought he saw a white man near the Stevens home Tuesday afternoon about 6 o'clock, now has told detectives that he is not sure whether the man he saw was white or black.

ATLANTA SUNDAY SCHOOLS ARE ENTERED IN ATTENDANCE TEST

The first tabulation of attendance in the Sunday schools of Atlanta shows that, with the exception of three among the nineteen listed, all have made a substantial gain since last year. Sunday's attendance is shown in the following table in contrast with the figures of the corresponding Sunday in 1912, and in contrast also with the church membership.

Each Sunday during the next three months will furnish new figures for this tabulation and it is to be given out each Monday for publication. The schools named below are parties to an agreement formulated recently among their respective superintendents, whereunder their attendance figures will be reported to a quasi-headquarters for tabulation. It is anticipated that several other schools will be represented in the table upon next Sunday's attendance, and that the test, though not in itself a contest, will develop a healthy spirit of rivalry among all the schools and perhaps give occasion also for extemporaneous contests between pairs of them.

	Church Membership.	Attendance Year Ago.	Sunday's Attendance.

THREE DAYS' RECREATION MAKES WILSON NEW MAN

President Receives Newspaper Correspondents for Usual Monday Chat

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Three days of rest and recreation have brought a glow of color to the face of President Wilson and today he looked refreshed and healthy as he faced the Washington correspondents at the usual Monday conference. The president was in good humor and parried dozens of questions with evident enjoyment.

"Can you tell us what is holding up the nomination of a public printer?" was one of the first inquiries.

"Mainly the indecision of the president," said Mr. Wilson, with a laugh, in which his hearers joined.

Mr. Wilson said he had nearly made up a list of diplomatic appointments, but would not make them public until it was actually completed.

Although he has decided upon an ambassador for Mexico, the president said the appointment would be deferred until conditions warranted recognition of the Mexican republic.

Changes in the civil service commission, he let it be known, would await the outcome of an investigation by the senate of the civil service.

OBSERVATORY TOWER FOR PANAMA MEMORIAL

Editor The Journal.

A memorial to perpetuate the opening of the Panama canal should be permanent, useful as well as ornamental, something in keeping with the canal itself, which is the greatest engineering feat of modern times.

Therefore, the memorial might take the form of an observatorire tower of symbolic design, and of a height sufficient to enable sightseers to view from the top a good stretch of the canal. The top, which could be used as a lighthouse, to be reached by elevators.

The base of the tower to contain rooms for a library and a museum devoted to the history of the canal from its beginning to the official opening for traffic.

Respectfully submitted,
E. J. SAYWELL.

EXPERTS STUDY BATTLES OF THE BALKAN WAR

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Military experts at the army war college have completed their study of the Balkan campaign. Hundreds of reports from all sources were scanned carefully, and the campaign of aggression by the allies together with the defensive tactics of the Turks were scrutinized for military lessons that might prove valuable to the United States.

The expert it was said today, are agreed that in fighting qualities the troops on the two sides were evenly matched. Turkey, however, fought a losing fight from the beginning, because of her unpreparedness. The Balkan allies, on the other hand, for years had made careful preparations for the struggle.

THE ACID TEST BRIGHT'S DISEASE

10 grammes Picric Acid.
10 grammes Citric Acid.
Water to make one litre.

Equal quantities of this re-agent and specimen from case of Bright's Disease in test tube will, in twenty-four hours, show the percentage of albumen. Put the patient on Fulton's Renal Compound. Test every few days for twenty days and you will know to a certainty whether the albumen is decreasing or not. (As the albumen decreases the microscope commonly shows the casts also to be disappearing.) Thus that Fulton's Renal Compound lessens the escape of albumen and permits recovery in many cases of Bright's Disease no one need doubt. (Usually takes from ten to twenty days to begin to show.)

The new agent is a mild infusion without opiates or heart stimulants. The substance of the formula surrounds each bottle. The action being on Renal degeneration prescriptions do not conflict. Commonly gets recoveries alone where there is a fair heart and recuperative power.

With failure admitted in chronic cases on the orothodox treatment, relatives of patients having Bright's Disease owe it to themselves and the patients to put the above to the test. Fulton's Renal Compound can be had at Frank Edmondson & Bro., 11 N. Broad street, and 106 North Pryor street, Atlanta, Ga.

DR. WATKINS ENTERS RACE FOR CONGRESS

Dr. E. W. Watkins Announces His Candidacy for Congress From the Ninth

Dr. E. W. Watkins announces that he will be a candidate in 1914 for congress from the Ninth district.

Dr. Watkins was in the race against Mr. Bell while the latter was serving his second term in congress. At that time no man could have defeated Mr. Bell, however, it being an unwritten precedent that a man in congress must have time to demonstrate his merit.

At this stage of Mr. Bell's tenure in office Dr. Watkins feels confident that he can be elected, and asks the support of all the voters in his district in the next election.

Dr. Watkins will go into the fight with the support of some of the ablest men in Georgia, and will make the race to win. He will appoint campaign managers soon and announce his plans for work.

VIRGIL M. COLLUM IS SOUGHT BY FAMILY

Police are seeking Virgil M. Collum, aged fifteen, who mysteriously disappeared from the home of his aunt, Mrs. Francis Phillips, Piedmont avenue and Seventeenth street, last Thursday afternoon. His mother, Mrs. G. W. Collum, of Rock Spur station, on the Southern railway, asked Chief Beavers aid in finding her son Monday morning. She believes that the lad is being detained by force or has met with foul play.

Young Collum was visiting his aunt and had been in the city about ten days. Last Thursday afternoon he was missed by his aunt and a search of the neighborhood failed to disclose him. His mother was notified and it was thought that he might return home. When, however, he did not appear by Sunday, Mrs. Collum came to the city to conduct a search for the boy.

The youth has a long scar on his left ankle, by which he could be easily identified, his mother said.

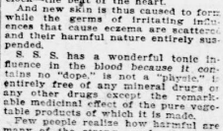
Fine Remedy For Eczema

Also for Salt Rheum, Tetter, Psoriasis, Lupus, and All Skin Afflictions.



Even a Microscope Won't Find a Blemish After S. S. S. Gets Through.

All skin troubles should be attacked from within by giving the blood circulation a good daily bath. This is accomplished with S. S. S., the best known and most highly recommended blood purifier ever discovered. Its action is very rapid. Its vegetable nature is such that it naturally goes right into the blood, saturates the entire circulation, bathes the tissues with an influence that enables the skin to heal quickly. The action of S. S. S. is that of an antidote, and this fact has been demonstrated time and time again in the most severe forms of weeping eczema.

Its influence in the tissues where the tiny arteries transfer the red blood for the worn out blood to the veins is quite remarkable and goes on constantly with every tick of the clock—the beat of the heart.

And new skin is thus caused to form while the germs of irritating influences that cause eczema are scattered and their harmful nature entirely suspended.

S. S. S. has a wonderful tonic influence in the blood because it contains no "dope," is not a "physic" but entirely free of any mineral drugs or any other drugs except the remarkable medicinal effect of the pure vegetable products of which it is made.

Few people realize how harmful are many of the strong, crude ointments that used to be in favor before they learned that S. S. S. is safe, speedy and sure. Ask at any drug store for a bottle of S. S. S. Give it a good trial and you will soon see a decided improvement in any form of skin trouble. Write to The Swift Specific Co., 127 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for special free advice on eczema and any other form of skin or blood trouble.

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE ENJOYED A FINE YEAR

President Gaines Esteems It as Best--Academy Feature Discontinued Now

Dr. F. H. Gaines, president of Agnes Scott college, announces the discontinuance of the academy department of the school with the closing of the present term.

Although the academy has done splendid work for years as a preparatory department of the college, and Dr. Gaines heartily congratulates the trustees on its success, yet he declares that he feels as do the trustees of the college, that the college should be the only institution on the campus.

Since the curriculum of Agnes Scott was raised to equal that of any other woman's college in the United States, the college has gained steadily in prominence and reputation, and the year just closed marks the pinnacle of its success thus far.

Dr. Gaines announces that the session just ended was decidedly the most successful in point of enrollment and college spirit in the history of the school.

At the closing session the following prizes were awarded: First honor, not awarded; second honor, Miss Janie McGaughey; fellowship, Miss Emma Pope Moss, of Georgia; collegiate scholarship, Miss Grace Goehegan, of Alabama; piano scholarship, Miss Mary Pope, of Tennessee; voice culture scholarship, Miss Aledia Sadler, of Alabama; art scholarship, Miss Hallie Smith, of North Carolina; English prize, Miss Emma Jones, of Georgia; Byron prize, Miss Emma Jones, of Georgia; mathematics medal, Miss Annie Tate Jenkins, of Mississippi.

ATLANTA BUILDERS ARE AFTER 1914 CONVENTION

Big Delegation Goes to Cincinnati to Present Atlanta's Claims

When the National Association of Building Owners and Managers meets, June 10 to 13, in Cincinnati, it will decide which city in the United States is worthy of the 1914 meeting of the convention.

Atlanta is going after the honor.

It is going after it by sending a big delegation of local boosters to the Cincinnati meeting, who will present the claims of this city to the assembly in the most forceful nd attractive manner possible.

The boosters are members of the Atlanta Association of Building Owners and Managers. The officers of the association have sent out circular letter sto local builders and managers, urging them to attend the Cincinnati convention and pull their strongest for their home town.

In the letters the association gives a number of good reasons why Atlanta should get the next convention; Because a meeting held in the south would benefit the national association in hundreds of ways; because the south is about the only section of the country that has not been favored by the national association; because Atlanta probably has more large buildings for its population than any other city in the world; because Atlanta has the facilities, the auditorium for the meeting and good hotels for the delegates; because Atlanta is easily accessible from any part of the United States; because Atlanta's climate is ideal, and has been the inducement which has led conventions to gather here many times before; lastly, because Atlanta wants the convention, and the city will strive to make it the most instructive and enjoyable one that the national association ever has experienced.

The Cincinnati convention is the sixth annual meeting of the association. It will be attended by delegates from all over the United States, wealthy delegates and delegates who stand high in the country's commercial progress. These men are the ones the Atlanta boosters want to come here next year, and they are going after them.

NEW YORKER LECTURED AT CABLE HALL SUNDAY

W. M. Wisdom Addressed Audience on "Love of God and Fire of Hell"

W. M. Wisdom, of New York City, delivered his lecture on "The Love of God and the Fire of Hell" to a large and attentive audience Sunday afternoon in the Cable concert hall.

The speaker had the closest attention throughout. In summing up he said: "By providing the Lord Jesus Christ as the Redeemer of the church and the world, God has made possible a fresh trial or Judgment for Adam and his race. Adam's first judgment or trial day was in Eden. There he lost everything by his disobedience and brought upon himself and all of his race the Divine sentence to death. Christ has appeared that He might redeem Adam and his race, for the very purpose of giving them individually another full, fair trial or judgment for life everlasting or death everlasting.

"That general judgment day mentioned by St. Paul is neither a damnation day nor a twenty-four hour day. It is the thousand-year day of Christ—the period of His meditatorial reign, in the which Satan will be bound, all evil influences be removed and the light of the knowledge of the glory of God be made to fill the whole earth."

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The United States is second only to Great Britain in supplying cotton goods to Canada, says a report just made by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce. In 1900 Great Britain supplied 67 per cent of Canada's needs in cotton goods, the United States 23 per cent. Last year Great Britain furnished 63 per cent, this country 26 per cent.

Canada's cotton goods purchases in 1900 amounted to $6,900,000: In 1912 to $22,800,000. The report declares that the Canadian mills are not keeping pace with home demands for cotton goods, but that they are enlarging.

PARADE WILL MARK GROCERS AND BUTCHERS HALF-HOLIDAY

More Than 1,000 Wagons in March Wednesday Will Inaugurate Summer Closing Plan Adopted by Retail Provision Men—Wednesday Chosen So Saturday's Busy Trade Would Not Be Affected

A gigantic parade unique in the history of Atlanta will mark the inauguration next Wednesday of the half-holiday closing scheme for June, July and August planned by the Atlanta Grocers and Butcher' association. More than 1,000 wagons, loaded with Atlanta grocers and butchers and their employes, will take part in the procession, to impress the fact that for the next three months 90 per cent of the retail stores in Atlanta will be closed each Wednesday afternoon.

The parade, which is to be preliminary to a picnic of members of the association at Piedmont park, will form at the state capitol at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and move through the downtown thoroughfares. No less than four bands will be in the line of march and many local military and semi-military organizations will participate.

PLAN BROACHED YEAR AGO.

The closing movement planned by the retail men goes back to a luncheon given last August by Harry L. Schlesinger. The holiday committee of the association, composed of O. T. Camp, W. A. Byers, F. E. Kamper, J. P. Eve, John R. Morris, J. G. Rainey and R. H. Comer, were his guests. At the meeting the plan to be put into execution Wednesday was begun and the details were worked out rapidly afterwards.

It was pointed out that it has been only a few years since dry goods merchants in Atlanta began closing on Saturday afternoon in the summer months, and that practically all the stores in Atlanta, including commission men, jobbers and wholesale houses of all descriptions, had joined in the plan.

CHOSE WEDNESDAY.

In selecting a day to close, the grocers and butchers were confronted with an entirely different problem than that which was put up to the dry goods and wholesale merchants, who close on Saturdays.

So the retail provision men decided to split the time between Sundays and close in the middle of the week, so that the business of Saturday, the biggest and most important day to the grocers and butchers, would not be affected.

The closing movement has met with enthusiasm all over the city and some 90 per cent of the stores have agreed to join in the plan. It is expected that before the summer draws to an end practically every grocer and butcher in Atlanta will have followed suit.

MEXICAN NAT'L RAILWAY IN NEED OF $10,000,000

Huerta's Lack of Recognition Embarasses Big Government Enterprise

NEW YORK, June 2.—With a view to making arrangements for meeting $10,000,000 in two years, 4½ per cent notes of the National railways of Mexico, which mature Monday, bankers for the road here held a conference today. Plans for financing the maturing notes were discussed, it was made known. Another conference is scheduled for tomorrow and an announcement is expected tomorrow night or on Monday.

That the needs of the road will be fully taken care of was the assurance expressed by banking interests.

The national railways of Mexico is a government enterprise and its financing is closely interlocked with that of the government itself. It had been hoped that the negotiation of a $75,000,-000 loan pending in Paris, in which French, English and American bankers have associated themselves would have been completed before this time, solving the railroad's financing problem. Lack of recognition of the Huerta government by foreign nations, including the United States, is said to have been a factor in delaying the execution of the loan.

CLOSING EXERCISES OF GIRLS' NIGHT SCHOOL

Program Will Be Presented Tuesday Night at Central Congregational S. S.

The closing exercises of the Girls' Night school of Atlanta will be held Tuesday night at 8 o'clock in the Sunday school rooms of the Central Congregational church, corner East Ellis street and Carnegie way.

Miss Laura White, principal of the school, has prepared an elaborate and interesting program. Among the numbers will be an industrial drill, an adaptation of Hiawatha, given by the members of the Girls' Camp Fire club, and a series of tableaux by the foreign girls. There will be music, consisting mostly of patriotic songs.

William M. Slaton, superintendent of the Atlanta public schools, will make an address. The public is invited.

DR. BRAGG IS ELECTED TO HEAD OSTEOPATHS

Georgia Osteopaths Closed Meeting Saturday With Election of Officers

Dr. E. E. Bragg, of Atlanta, now heads the Georgia Osteopathic association. His election to the presidency took place at the convention which was held Saturday in the Imperial hotel. The other officers elected were: Dr. J. W. Elliott, of Cordele, Ga., vice president; Dr. W. W. Blackman, of Atlanta, secretary and treasurer. The executive committee chosen was: Dr. L. C. Harris, of Marietta; Dr. A. C. Lane, of Griffin, and Dr. N. B. Riley, of Rome.

Dr. Blackman was selected as state representative to attend the convention of the National Osteopathic association, which will be held in Kirkeville, Mo., the birthplace of osteopathy, on the eighty-second birthday of Dr. Alexander Still, the founder of osteopathy. Dr. Still's home is in Kirkville, where is found also the American School of Osteopathy, the largest institution of its kind in the world.

The association has not chosen the name of its next convention city. This is done by the executive committee in the spring. An invitation to meet in Cordele, Ga., was extended to the convention by Dr. Elliott.

When the business of the convention was through, those in attendance were entertained with an exhibition given by Ellis Whitman, known as the "human rattle box." This man is able to dislocate all joints and can throw his heart from one side of his chest to the other.

The thirty-odd osteopaths attending the convention were entertained at luncheon Saturday by Dr. F. F. Jones, of Macon.

Many important papers were read at the convention, and the report of the retiring president, Dr. W. H. Bowdoin, of Atlanta, showed the association to be in a prosperous condition.

RICHES OF LIFE ARE FOUND BY WAYSIDE

Speaking on the subject of "Wayfarers and Guests," Dr. L. O. Bricker attracted a large congregation at the First Christian church Sunday morning.

Dr. Bricker showed that the riches of life are not found in goals or upon mountain peaks of achievement, but along the wayside.

More Crops Mean More Money.

In commenting on the wonderful variety of crops that can be profitably grown in Georgia, the Savannah Morning News mentions a particularly interesting example of a Wilkes county farmer who now has under cultivation one hundred and twenty-five acres which include corn, wheat, oats, rye, alfalfa, turnips, potatoes and other food products. The prospect for each of these crops is cheering but, should any of them prove a failure, the others would stand ready to hedge the loss, a situation vastly safer and better than that of the farmer who stakes his all on a single venture in cotton. The News adds, in this connection:

"While weather conditions this spring have not been favorable, there is no evidence that the farmers have despaired of making money. The report comes from Tift county that despite all discouragements, farmers there received one hundred and twenty-five dollars an acre for their cabbages. The repeated warning that there must be diversification of crops is having effect."

No omen in Georgia's agricultural affairs is more assuring than that which points to a breaking away from the old tyranny of the one-crop idea; nor is there surer evidence that the principles of scientific and businesslike farming are at length being applied. The time is fast coming when Georgia will no longer depend for its prosperity on cotton or on any other one product but when every season, if not every month, will yield a harvest of its own.

A State whose soil and climate are capable of producing almost everything needed for man's sustenance should not limit its energy to a single field of agriculture, and that an uncertain one. Let the present movement toward wide diversity in crops continue, and Georgia will be a thousandfold richer and more independent than ever before.

With summer here, we may spend our vacation on mint beds of ease.

What Next in Mexico?

Observers of the situation in Mexico are now speculating upon whether the Huerta regime can hold itself intact until a presidential election is conducted and a new chief executive is chosen by constitutional methods. Both houses of the Congress have already passed a bill fixing October the twenty-sixth next as the date for such an election and, though Provisional President Huerta seems in no hurry to issue a decree to that effect, it is not likely that he will delay much longer in doing so.

In the meantime, the most that he can hope to do is to hold the country in comparative peace. If, as is reported, he and his associates have secured a large loan from European bankers, this task will henceforth be easier than it has been for several months past. His military forces, which of late have been sadly depleted and demoralized, can be strengthened, and with an improved treasury he can carry forward those urgent activities of the government which had come almost to a standstill.

It is not believed that Huerta has personal ambitions for the immediate future. Any dreams which he might once have entertained have been shattered by the severe condemnation which his bloody betrayal of the late President Madero has encountered abroad as well as at home. There are now strongly organized camps of revolution in both northern and southern Mexico to overthrow him forthwith without waiting until his successor can be chosen in an orderly manner.

The only avowed candidate for the Presidency is Felix Diaz and he, like Huerta, is under a cloud of public suspicion as a conspirator in the slaying of Madero. Dispatches say that the tone of a large part of the Mexican press and the expressions of the opinion of many people, including numerous friends of Felix Diaz, "indicate that his popularity has waned and that there is little chance of his election."

The other probable candidates for the Presidency are Manuel Calero, formerly Mexican ambassador at Washington, and Francisco de la Barra, now minister of foreign affairs. The latter seems to be by far the stronger of these two men in so far as personal gifts and attainments are concerned. The younger Diaz, however, is a figure that Mexico must reckon with, whether or not he should be elected. He is extremely ambitious. He has proved his skill and hardihood as a soldier; and, if by any turn of popular sentiment he succeeds in mustering about him a considerable force of followers, he can make trouble for any administration that may be established.

The thing immediately to be desired in Mexico is a maintenance of peace until the presidential election can be held. Whoever is chosen in that election will at least have the advantage of having attained the office through constitutional means and, if an able man, he will probably command the support of a majority of patriotic Mexicans.

The Rout of the Tariff Lobby.

It was characteristic of President Wilson that he should speak patly and bluntly and straight to the people concerning the efforts of selfish interests to override or weaken the tariff bill now before the Senate. It has ever been the Wilson way to talk as plainly of men as of measures and to keep in direct touch with the rank and file to whom the government rightfully belongs. It is thus that he concentrates the pressure of public opinion on crucial issues and produces results.

That the President was sure of his ground when he declared last week that "a numerous, industrious lobby" was at work in Washington to impede and, if possible, to defeat the cause of honest tariff revision, there can be no doubt. Those particular interests which in the past have controlled the government realized this year that the one hope of gaining their ends lay in the Senate. The House afforded them little or no opportunity, for it is overwhelmingly Democratic and the majority of its members are fresh from the people. But in the Senate, the margin of Democratic power is extremely narrow, so that a few votes changed would accomplish the purpose of those opposing tariff revision. Hence, as a correspondent observes, "the sending of the bill to the Senate was the signal for the rallying of the practical tariff workers at Washington, together with the great stirring of their principals who sit in distant cities and direct their operations."

Now, there can be no objection to business men going openly to a Senate committee and presenting their views or claims with reference to tariff schedules. This is their right; and when they come in good faith and aboveboard they should be welcomed. It is not against such men that the President warns the country but against that swarm of special agents employed by protected interests to work covertly and in concert to sway the mind or the conscience of the people's representatives and against the equally pernicious efforts to manufacture a spurious "public opinion" through misstatement of the facts concerning the tariff bill. Mr. Wilson lays bare the evil of such activities when he says:

"It is of serious interest to the country that the people at large should have no lobby, and be voiceless, in these matters when great bodies of astute men seek to create an artificial opinion and to overcome the interests of the public for their private profit. The Government in all its branches ought to be relieved from this intolerable burden and this constant interruption to the calm progress of debate."

What right has a trust or other organization to seek influences which the public is denied or to seek favors which are contrary to the public good? If this nation is really a democracy, then all men and all interests must stand on an equal footing in appeals to the Government.

The President's sharp and timely warning has already had the desired effect. For one thing, it has put the lobbyists on notice that their workings are under the searchlight of publicity. It has put the Senate on notice that the people are more keenly watchful than ever before and that every vote against genuine tariff revision will be subjected to the closest scrutiny. And what is perhaps most important of all, it has put the country on notice that a heavily financed campaign to create artificial sentiment has been afoot and that true public sentiment must make itself heard and felt.

As a direct and immediate result of the President's statement, the Senate has ordered a thorough inquiry into the lobby situation. The judiciary committee has been instructed to ascertain and report the names and the methods of lobbyists. Senators will be required to testify as to who has approached them with reference to particular schedules, what suggestions have been employed to influence their vote, and, furthermore, any senators who may be personally or financially interested in protected industries will be required to explain their interest.

The effect of such a procedure cannot be otherwise than wholesome and favorable to the enactment of the pending tariff bill; for, it will bring the Senate into the full light of public attention. It will reveal the methods and motives of those who are opposing tariff revision and will draw the line sharply and decisively between Senators who stand for the country's common interests and those who are allied with the forces of special privilege.

Thus the outlook for the passage of the tariff bill substantially as it came from the House is brighter today than at any time since the extra session of Congress convened. There will doubtless be changes of detail in the measure as it now stands, but every indication is that its essential principles will be preserved unimpaired. The power of the lobby has been broken; the rights of the people are to be established, and Democracy's pledge squarely fulfilled.

This just and fortunate outcome will be due to those stanch members of the House and the Senate who have stood uncompromisingly by the party's principles and it will be due very largely, too, to the splendid hardihood with which President Wilson has kept his faith.

That Washington lobby is having a sudden vacation.

If he doesn't talk shop he probably has no shop to talk.

THE PIANO BUSINESS

By Frederic J. Haskin

Practically every branch of the musical trades in the United States will be represented in the great convention which meets in Cleveland today. The National Association of Piano Merchants of America, the National Piano Manufacturers' association, the National Association of Piano Travelers and Salesmen and the Piano and Organ Supplies Trades association are holding their conventions simultaneously in the Ohio metropolis in order that a closer co-operation may be secured between them, looking toward the mutual advantage of all. In addition to these representatives of the American Guild of Piano Tuners, which will hold its convention in Cleveland in August, will be in attendance at the business meetings of the piano dealers and make some addresses regarding matters upon which a better understanding is desired between the tuners, merchants and manufacturers.

One of the matters which has attracted the attention of both the piano dealers and manufacturers this spring is the enormous number of pianos ruined in the floods. In Dayton alone over $1,000,000 worth of pianos were destroyed. The loss to dealers in the entire flood region amounts to several million dollars. It has been tacitly decided that no attempt shall be made by any reputable firm to repair flood damaged pianos for the reason that it would be impossible to guarantee the quality of an instrument which had been exposed to the flood, and in at least one town the piano dealers burned the pianos in public. Notwithstanding the fact that the manufacturers have stated that flood pianos could not be repaired, basing their decision partially upon the attempts made after the great flood at Johnstown, it has become known to the members of the different trade organizations that unscrupulous persons have already begun to canvas the flood territory with a promise of either repairing the piano or, more frequently, of exchanging it for another instrument for a cash payment. The instrument offered under these conditions can only be of inferior quality as the flood-soaked piano has no value and the matter of protecting the people of the flood region from this misrepresentation will be one of the matters discussed at the conventions of both the merchants and manufacturers of pianos.

The piano merchants are actively working toward securing legislation against false or misleading advertising. Laws penalizing fraudulent advertising have been under the consideration of legislatures in several states and the piano merchants' organization is supporting all such efforts. The one price selling system and methods for extending it is another subject of interest to the merchants and also to the salesman. While the custom of buying pianos on credit must continue, the methods of securing larger payments at regular intervals will be another matter under discussion. The fact that a piano is now recognized as a necessity in a home, rather than a luxury, makes it essential to place the means of securing one within the reach of moderate incomes. Often a full cash payment is impossible, but a reputable piano merchant can make an arrangement which will be in keeping with the ethics of well-conducted business, and at the same time give a family the use of an instrument while it is being paid for.

There are few articles sold regarding which the average customer is so likely to be deceived as a musical instrument, because only an expert is capable of judging values. The piano manufacturer is a great sufferer also from fraudulent schemes because thousands of pianos are sold each year by unscrupulous dealers which may have the name of a reputable maker stenciled on them, but in reality are the product of a third-grade factory. The buyers of such instruments secure no real value for the money invested. The low price at which they are sold hinders the sale of reliable instruments and the honest manufacturer, whose name is stolen, suffers because an inferior article sold under his name, tends to lessen confidence in that name.

The United States has become recognized because of the quality and number of its musical instruments which are imported to other countries. American pianos are popular in the court circles in every European country. The export trade in pianos last year approximated $5,000,000 and the instruments were shipped to South Africa and the Orient, as well as to Europe and South America. Several innovations in piano manufacture have been copied by those of other nations. The fact that America is supposed to be behind Europe in musical intelligence seems at variance with the rank taken by the American manufacturers of musical instruments. The iron frame in the grand piano, which was invented by Jonas Chickering nearly ninety years ago, marked a new era in pianos. Now an Ohio man claims to be able to produce an all-iron piano with the proper mellowness of tone. The "all-wood" piano is no longer of first rank.

The newest idea in piano manufacture is the introduction of electricity to vibrate the strings. A small electro magnet is placed in front of each string which causes a sustained tone. This electrical addition makes possible unusual results in orchestral, pipe organ and vox humana effects. A Pennsylvanian has used electric power to operate a drum and cymbals, which he has attached to a piano. These attachments are controlled by the pedal of the piano and with them the effect of a full brass band can be produced by a single player.

One of the oldest piano manufacturers in America recently started to revive the clavichord and the old-fashioned harpsichord. The harp is again finding its way into favor as a musical instrument in the home. A musical professor of Kansas has invented a new style harp having keys resembling those of a piano, which strike the wire strings. Its tones resemble those of a violin. A factory is now being built in Topeka, Kan., for the manufacture of these new instruments, which it is believed will come speedily into popularity.

The Boy Scout movement and other organizations having semi-military drills, which are becoming so numerous in the country, have brought about the greatest demand for drums in the history of the trade. Larger drums are also being built for special purposes. A special steer hide has to be killed in a Chicago packing house to provide the skin for the head of a thunder drum for the Belasco theater.

SMITH'S MOTOR CAR.

The Smiths—they live next door, you know—
Have lately come to such a state
They scarcely see us as they go
Early to take the air, or late,
They think their lot is truly great;
Well, I don't think so, anyhow,
Although they may be blest of fate—
The Smiths possess a motor now.

It is a "dinky little wheeze—
Looks like a June bug, I'll be bound.
They are not very hard to please,
Or else that car they somewhere found.
It, like a cockroach, scurries 'round,
And makes a most prodigious row
In fact, it's mostly smell and sound—
That last year's car the Smiths have now.

They're just an ostentatious gang,
And that's one truth they cannot hide;
For my part, they can all go hang—
Go in that car which is their pride.
Before I'd mix with such prigs I'd—
Here's Smith! Perhaps—I'll smile and bow—
He's come to ask us out to ride
In that fine car he's driving now.

A DREAM OF FAIR COOKS.

PROLOGUE.

Years, years agone, or ever I had come
To Social Problems and the World's Advance;
Or that Reform and Sin had made me dumb
To good o. f. Romance;

While still I fell for Dickens and for Scott,
While A. B. Frost was what I knew of Art,
When Love—in short, before I knew a lot
Of everything, in part—

Back in those days of measles and of croups—
If you insist, in eighteen ninety-three—
Tennyson's Poems and the Rogers Groups
Were everything to me.

And but on yesternight again I read,
Browsing among my dust-encrusted books,
A Dream of Women Fair, whereat I said:
"A Dream—ha!—of Fair Cooks!"

And so, as Browning'd say, I did 'gin write
A lyric sequence to our many maids
Of all-work—from the sturdy to the slight
Of varied shapes and shades.

Gretchen.

O blond and bland Bavarian,
No longer in the flat
Of this here proletarian
Dost thou hang up thy hat.

Allowing what I could for it—
That awful hat—I think
That hanging was too good for it—
A mass of green and pink!

No longer dost thou stay with us,
No longer rise at eight.
Meseems thou got'st too gay with us,
Wherefore thou got'est the gate.

I trust thy prodigality
With butter, eggs and cream
Will carry no penality
Under thy new regime

Farewell! I cannot jest at thee.
I can do naught but hurl
My wishes—all the best—at thee.
Farewell, poor little girl!

If it only had been agreed to beginning at that hour every train in Florida would RUN for ten minutes—that, Mawruss, would 'a' been real respect, y'understand. However, the colored hackmen enjoy Florida, so why should the s. of m. be p.?"

RELIGION

BY DR. FRANK CRANE.

(Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)

There appeared in the newspapers the other day an account of a man who had invented a new religion; he was rewriting the Bible. God had revealed certain things to him.

Among the truths he had received by revelation were these:

There are ten days in the week, instead of seven; their names are Sabbath, Air, Water, Animals, Unity, Earth, Plants, Birds, Man, and Salvation. Ten; count 'em. Instead of saying you will call next Tuesday or Friday, you would say next Animals or Birds.

On Salvation he celebrates the Lord's Supper, which consists of chocolate drops.

The world is ten million and two years old. The year, however, is not all what you think it to be. It is composed of 189 and some odd trillions of minutes.

There are many other items that have been communicated to him from heaven by private wire. He says: "It is all too complicated to explain till you see it all—then it is so beautifully simple." Doesn't that sound natural?

The author of this made his money by inventing a "hair compound" and a non-fillable bottle, has now retired from business, and is devoting his energies to the propagation of the faith.

Attention is called to this case, not for the purpose of ridiculing this man, for he has a perfect right to believe the moon is made of green cheese if he wants to, and that those who hold to the belief that it is camembert will be eternally lost; but for the purpose of showing, by this strange and marked instance, the curious survival, in the popular mind, of the pagan notion of religion.

Most people still imagine that a man's religion consists in the theories of fancies he entertains about the universe, how it was made and how will be destroyed; also his acceptance of certain facts of history and his idea of certain facts of the future.

I will say nothing of the popular "beliefs" of people, because they are unusually sensitive on that point, so sensitive indeed that it is not considered good form even to mention them.

But at least I may be allowed to call attention to what religion is.

It is a PASSION FOR RIGHTEOUSNESS. As Beecher used to say, it is morality touched with emotion.

The man who does right because he loves it is religious. Whoever does wrong because he loves it is irreligious. And whoso does right, not because he likes to, but because it pays, is non-religious.

That is the core of the matter, the substance; all the rest is trimmings.

When one loves to do what he ought to do, when Ought and Love melt into one thing, he is truly religious.

What he thinks about creation, ancient history, and the millennium is not the gist of the thing.

People never quarrel over their religion, they quarrel over their fancies. "All good men are of one religion," said the philosopher.

That religion is the Love of Right, and the Hate of Wrong. The only "damnable heretic" is the man that has not this Love and Hate.

WATCH YOUR STEP!

"Where you goin' this summer? You ain't? Why ain't you? Everybody else is. That's th' only reason I know of. It's th' summer panic. You don't want to let your wife and children think you can't run as fast as th' neighbors.

"I know a fellow that clerks for th' gas company. He's got four kids an' $30 a month. Every time hot weather comes you can see him weaken. I ask him last week which it was, the seashore or the mountains for him. He says: 'I tell you, Jerry, it's just this way: They're all doin' it, an' you got to go if you don't want your kids to feel ashamed of their daddy an' th' old woman stay on the ice wagon for life. I don't mind payin' fare to th' country, but I don't see where th' joy comes in. They put up at th' worst joint you ever see. If that summer boardin' house was in our block my wife wouldn't speak to anybody that went to it. I got a week off last year an' joined 'em. They lived on canned tomatoes an' meat that tasted like a boiled Derby hat. Th' cookin' was fierce. Had roast hen on Sunday. You'd thought it was pickled buzzard. It was too hot to go out any day I was there. Mosquitos worked day an' night. My wife broke her ankle fallin' off a chair. She was killin' spiders on the ceilin' with her shoe. Had to do it every night. But my folks had to stay. We let on that it's fine. 'Where you goin' this summer, Jerry?' 'I told him th' company don't hand out vacations to us fellows. If I had to chase off an' spend all I got just to prove I didn't dare stay at home, I'm glad I can't. Every married man I know has got this vacation bug. Most of 'em ain't afraid of nothing, but they will fall for this summer misery. Some day when their neighbors go 'way for the summer, they'll be tickled to death and live cooler, have more fun and sleep sounder than they do in winter.

"Look out for that other car, mister!

"Look where you goin'!

"Watch your step!"

Watch Insurgent Senators

(Collier's Weekly.)

There are in the United States senate seven men who, as Republicans four years ago, broke away from their party and voted against the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill. They are:

Joseph L. Bristow, Kansas.
Moses E. Clapp, Minnesota.
Coe I. Crawford, South Dakota.
Albert Cummins, Iowa.
Robert M. La Follette, Wisconsin.
Knute Nelson, Minnesota.
Miles Poindexter, Washington.

These compose the senators who are left of the original Insurgents. Their vote against the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill in 1909 elevated them high in public esteem. One of the most interesting problems of the present moment is whether in the year 1913 they will vote for or against the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill. The problem before them cannot be stated otherwise. The final vote in the present tariff session will be either to perpetuate the Payne-Aldrich bill or to substitute another.

THE EVENING STORY

CHANGE OF SCENE

(Copyright, 1913, by W. Werner.)

The place was not "home." It never could be home! She had no home! Having assured herself of these facts for perhaps the hundredth time, Muriel Davis flung her brand-new broom into a corner and threw herself upon the couch and wept among its pillows.

The panic of 1907 had broken the financial backbone of the Davises. But for five years thereafter they had refused to face the fact. Tom had struggled along at his end and Muriel at hers, trying to make one cent do the former duty of a hundred; and both had wondered why they were so wretched, until a certain evening, when they had suddenly found out. Tom, confronted with a larger than usual sheaf of bills, had collapsed. With his head in Muriel's lap he had begged to be hidden away in a little hole where nobody could bother him. He had sobbed out that he knew of a job he could get in another city at $22 a week. They could get a little house in a neighborhood where everybody else would be poor and unashamed of the fact. It would be heaven to him! Would she go?

They had gone. And the little house had materialized into a five-room cottage, green shuttered and set in the midst of a rose garden somewhat tangled. And in three months, clubs, motor cars, theaters, little suppers, and even conventional ailment, were dim and unregretted memories, as far as Tom was concerned. He was a free man, living within his income and able to pay his bills. The mall no longer held any terror for him. Unhammered by the necessity for maintaining any position whatsoever, he joyfully shed coat and collar in the evening and hobnobbed with the kindly neighbors, with whom he was immensely popular.

But Muriel, the first excitement of the new venture over, had gradually subsided into a slough of wretchedness. She had polished and burnished every cranny with her own hands; and, having done this, she felt that the scene of her endeavors would never afford her one moment's content. If she could only feel, as Tom did, that she belonged there—that it was "home"!

A tap on the screen door brought her suddenly to her feet.

"Can't stay, honey," said Mrs. Warren, corpulent and several times a grandmother, with dimples in her cheeks and the joy of eternal youth in her eyes. These same eyes, shrewd as they were kindly, took in the pathos in Muriel's appearance without seeming to notice it at all. "Brought you all one of my lemon meringue pies," she announced, and deposited the delicacy (locally famous) upon the table. "You and your man have it for dinner and you'll feel like ten-year-olds. My, how you all have tidied up this place!" she rattled on. "We're all awful proud of it since you all moved in and fixed up on! But bless my soul, child! You all oughtn't to be lookin' so pale! Bet you all haven't been scarcely out o' this yard since you all moved here! Now, ain't it so?"

Muriel hadn't and said so, and was herself surprised at the information. It seemed impossible; but then she had been so busy.

"You all need a change o' scene," Mrs. Warren decided.

"You all just put my pie in a basket with some sandwiches and pickles and take your man to Chesapeake beach tomorrow and I'll bet you'll get up the next mornin' and do the wash yourself."

"Is that a nice place?" Muriel asked wistfully.

"Pine!" her neighbor assured her. "There's crabbin' and fishin' and boatin', and a place where you can buy boiled crabs and sit an' eat 'em right out o' the bay and the pot—and be sure to take some ketchup for that. And there's a carrousel and a dancin' pavilion and everything else that a nice, homely little resort ought to have. And it's right on Chesapeake bay, you know. The salt air'll smell fine to you."

"I'll surely go," Muriel said gratefully, and added with a smile, "and take your pie and my man."

And the broad expanse of Mrs. Warren's back effectually concealed the smile which Mrs. Warren bestowed upon herself as she went down the trim path.

The beach train was at the station when they arrived there at 10 o'clock the next morning, and so was an eager crowd of bundle and basket equipped ticket purchasers. They had been on their way beachward for about twenty minutes when Muriel, looking down into the lap of her fresh white dress, discovered therein a liberal supply of big black cinders. She turned to Tom with an exclamation of dismay: "Why, this is a horrid, dirty steam road! And I thought it was a clean electric ride all the way! Oh, Tom! What a disappointment! And we can't put the windows down—we'll smother!"

They did put the shades down, however, and every one else did likewise. And as a consequence the ride that was to have been an open country pleasure turned out to be a forty-five minutes' sojourn in the depressive gloom and heat in the midst of worried mothers with fretting children.

There was a pathetic little pucker between Muriel's brows when she and Tom left the train. Tom saw and understood, and his anxious heart became leaden. "But the beach will be all right, dearie," he said, softly. "There can't be much wrong with the sea, you know."

Yes, the beach was all right and the bay smelt just as the sea should smell. And they subsided into a chair on the nearest pavilion and gazed on the Chesapeake's bland blue and filled their lungs with its elixir and for a brief space knew not unpleasant things. But presently Tom began to cast interested eyes toward their basket. And Muriel rose with a smile. "We'll find a table and I'll have some tea and you can have some coffee with your luncheon," she said.

And it was then they discovered that there was very little beach and very many people and not a vacant table anywhere. But Muriel did not regret the tables. Inspection of their greasy tops and greasier surroundings left her with a diminished appetite and, somehow, a haunting picture of the cottage's dainty, flower bedecked table with its "Brown Betty" pot of fragrant tea, its crisp salad, its bowl of ruddy fruit.

The heat was increasing every minute and Tom looked at her anxiously. She in turn looked back from the narrow strip of people strewn beach to the weedy stretch of country behind it.

"Let's take the basket and go over there, Tom," she said. "There seems to be plenty of room."

There was room, to be sure. But a band of gypsies, with semi-starved horses and brow beaten dogs and prematurely aged women and half clad children swarmed over every spot, it seemed to Muriel, blotting out whatever attraction the country might have had.

"We'll have to stop under this nice tree, Tom," she said at last. "I can't go any farther."

It was a nice tree, but it was in un pleasant proximity to a broken down shanty. Neither believed that it could afford an abode for anything human; but presently there emerged, pail in hand, a barefooted, bedraggled specimen of womanhood who, after stopping to stare with almost hostile admiration at the white clad Muriel, shambled off in the direction of a distant cow.

Muriel choked and laid down a piece of Mrs. Warren's wonderful pie. Let's go back and eat crabs!" she gasped. "Mrs. Warren said eating crabs is great fun. To think of any woman living in that awful place."

The crab pavilion proved to be a place of flies and bare, unclean tables, from many of which the remains of the last feast had not been removed. And to eat crabs just as they come from the boiling requires a dexterity and a knowledge of crab anatomy which neither Muriel nor Tom possessed. So by the time the sixth of their half dozen crabs had been dismembered Tom was almost as much a crab as the crab itself. Muriel was frankly tearful. She clutched Tom's sleeve with her crabby fingers.

"I want to go on the next train," she exclaimed.

But they did not go on the next train nor the next nor even the next after that. For the people at the beach were accomplished excursionists and filled each car before Muriel or Tom could step upon the platform. It was midnight when they at last disembarked at their own road.

Before their gate both stopped abruptly. Directly over the little cottage the moon had halted. Smiling benignly down, it accented the whiteness of shingles, the clearness of shutters. From the porch the clustering Lady Baltimore rose smiled joyously back. The graceful Forsythia bush at the gate swayed lightly in the fresh breeze, and the trim privet hedge (Tom's pride) looked as cool and green and inviting as trees. At the sound of their footsteps one of the wicker chairs on the porch jerked tempestuously; something sprang therefrom and with a whir-rr-r as musical and tender as an aeolian harp, dashed down the path to meet them—the dainty, white footed kitten that had adopted them with their coming.

"Doesn't it look pretty and peaceful—and clean?" Tom whispered.

Muriel's answer was to drop on her knees in the path and bury her face in a cluster of nigronette.

"It's home, Tom—home, sweet home!" she sobbed. "And I've been homesick for it all day. Sometimes we have to get away from a thing before we can see how beautiful it is."

And Tom smiled up at the moon, smiling down. "And there won't be any bills in tomorrow's mail, old lady!" he said.

QUO VADIS PHOTO PLAY WILL BE A THRILLER

A rare treat is promised Atlantians when the Kleine-Cines company's photo-drama of Henry Sienkiewicz's powerful romance of Roman society, "Qo Vadis," is produced here. The film is more than 9,000 feet in length, and represents an outlay of more than $150,000.

It is on such a magnificent plane that the projectors of this wonderful photo-drama of "Quo Vadis" announce that their enterprise is not promoted to compete with the ordinary picture show. On the contrary, it is claimed that the production of this famous story, producing in detail the grim, terrorizing magnicence of the last years of the reign of Nero, is a marvelous exposition of the art of the producer and the wonder of the camera.

The Italian government gave special permission for this film, scenes of which were laid in the colisseum and Faratine, and the Societa Italiana "Cines" is responsible for its production as a motion picture play. Three thousand ve hundred actors were employed, who risked their lives while surrounded by a pack of 100 wild beasts in the arena scene. The play lasts two hours and a half.

"Quo Vadis" will be seen at the Grand opera house during the week of June 16.

THEATERS

FORSYTH—Vaudeville.
BIJOU—Vaudeville and Pictures.

There is a program of seven Keith vaudeville features on at the busy Forsyth this week, and with the cooling plant working like a soothing breeze from the arctic regions, and everything about the theater in inviting condition, patrons can count on a week of real recreation.

The advance sales indicate that this will be a busy period.

The headline feature is Lillian Shaw, who is known to theatergoers as a star among character singing comediennes. Miss Shaw has paid a visit to Atlanta every year for three seasons, and has grown more popular with each engagement. She claims to possess more exclusive songs than any other artist in the profession.

Among the other features is Jack Hazzard, a monologist, who is a big favorite in the larger cities, but who now makes his first appearance in Atlanta. His songs and sayings have furnished material for a good many of the high priced and vaudeville shows; now comes the orginator himself. Paul Seldom's models in their new series of posing, "Poems in Marble," will be just as great a drawing card as when they were seen at the Forsyth three years ago. The trio of people, including a shapely woman, will score one of the hits of the season.

Ward and Curran, character comedians, will offer their new sketch, "The Stage Door Tender," and Wright and Dietrich, "the somewhat different singers," are going to be popular. The Three Alex, i na novelty gymnastic number, and the Caites Brothers, in dances, will add to the power of the bill. Daily matinees and evening performances all the week.

Max Speigel's tabloid musical comedy, "The College Girls," is announced as this week's attraction at the Bijou. It is said to be the best, cleverest and most up-to-date musical comedy that will be seen at the Bijou this season. The excellent cast which Mr. Speigel has engaged includes an array of artists of exceptional ability. Among them are Matrin J. Guild, the German comedian of up-to-date methods; Frank Criste, the Irish comedian, whose brogue is inimitable; Lillian Cameron, who plays "The College Girl," and who possesses not only a good voice but is decidedly pretty; Jimmie Hunter, Frankie Grace, Bessie Clay, and a chorus of young and attracting girls. Many bright and novel specialties will be introduced during the action of the piece. The scenic and light effects are said to be attractive. "College Girls" is full of new and up-to-date musical numbers, and it is promised that there will not be a dull moment from curtain to curtain. During the week matinees will be given every afternoon at 3 o'clock, except on Saturday and Monday, when two matinees will be given at 2:30 and 4. Night shows at 7:30 and 9 o'clock.

48c for very pretty little Waists of voile and lingerie cloth. Buy them by the half dozen. Embroidery and lace trimmings and tailored styles; high and Dutch necks, long and three-quarter length sleeves.

$1.19 For $1.75 to $2.25 Waists

A splendid variety of white voile and crepe waists, all white and white with touches of colored embroidery—pink and shades of blue—trimmed with cluny and filet laces; high and round necks, long and half length sleeves.

33c For 50c to 75c Dressing Sacques

Of muslins and percales in pretty colorings and patterns, figured, flowered and dotted. Turn over collars or round neck, long or three-quarter length sleeves.

75c For $1.00 and $1.50 House Dresses

An odd lot gathered at this price for quick selling. Of percales, in neat patterns and styled in a way to appeal to women seeking cool, simple little dresses for round-the-house wear—square or round necks.

Ratine, Linen, Voile and Crepe Dresses

These are the dresses that hold first place in the hearts of women this warm weather season, and a happier collection could hardly be gathered. More styles than could ever be told of here, and every one of them at reduced prices.

Indeed, tomorrow will be a fine day of savings!

$11.98 For $15.00 to $19.75 Dresses

Linens and ratines—the linens are those roughish kinds, too. For the lack of a better way to express it we will say there is an "assortment" of styles and colors. Embroidered and plain, all of them pretty as to collars and waists and all showing very plainly that their worth is greater than their price.

$17.98 For $25.00 to $37.50 Dresses

Voiles and crepes, mostly white, a few colors. Here you find the imported materials, the flaked and plain crepes, the filmiest of voiles; hand embroidery weighting them, and the most delicate of hand-made tucks. Dresses made after models from the Paris style originators. A woman's eyes must describe them for herself! The marvel is that such dresses should be so priced here in the hey-dey of their vogue. But they are!

$17.50 For $29.75, $35, $37.50, $45 & $48 Woolen Suits

This, then, is the final out-clearing of woolen suits, and you who have postponed the buying of the vacation suit are going to profit beautifully.

Among these are suits of serge, of diagonals, of Venetian cloth, of poplins, of ratines and the like in solid black, navy, in black and navy with white hairlines, grays, tans, mixtures and a few black and white checks. Also there are some twelve white woolen suits and about half as many novelty cotton ratine suits,

You who know the Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co. methods of clearing stocks know what to expect---the charmingest suits that this season has brought out for regular selling at $29.75 to $48.50 at $17.50.

$7.50 For $11.75 to $15.00 Linen Suits

We use the phrase linen suits in a broad way. With them are a number of ratine suits. The linens are the heavy ramie and cossack linens. There are plain tailored styles, Bulgarian styles and jaunty cutaway styles finished with straps and buttons in most approved fashions. In Copenhagen, navy, tan, brown and white. $7.50 goes but a little ways toward the actual cost of such suits.

Vassar Girls Turkey Trot

Great is the joy at Vassar. The ban has been lifted on the turkey trot and the tango, and at the senior "prom," the young women were permitted to dance the steps that have been forbidden heretofore.

At the junior-sophomore hop there was a great scarcity of men because of the ban on the new dances, and the girls let it be known that they were through with the old ones.

A "law and order" committee of carefully selected students and members of the faculty will attend the coming "prom," to see that propriety is observed.

Interesting Pictures On Exhibition

Mrs. Gregory has just finished two old ancestors portraits. One is of the earl of Liverpool, prime minister of England, 1812-1827. He was a Great grandfather of Mrs. Etta Mills Cresap, of Atlanta, and of Mrs. E. Padgett, of Tampa, Fla.

The other is of Count L'Escurreur in his court dress. He was the first old agent to bring a colony to Charleston, in 1629, and is an ancestor of many old Charleston families, the Ravenels, St. Julliens, Dupuis, Gignilliatts and others.

The model was found in the walls of an old castle on the coast of South Carolina and was preserved through both the Revolutionary and Civil wars. Both are interesting old pictures, rich in tone and mellow in coloring.

They are on exhibition at the Walker art store on Pryor street.

Woman in a Siege

VIENNA.—Frau von Zambour, the wife of the Austrian consul general in Scutari, received me at her hotel in Vienna today.

Frau von Zambour has just returned with two children, a boy of 6 and a girl of 13, from Scutari, where they lived throughout the 191 days' seige.

"At first," she said, "we did not take the siege seriously at all. Supplies were plentiful, and the Turkish soldiers made raids and brought back cattle.

"At the beginning of March the siege became closer.

"We were then forced to take refuge in the cellars.

"The Austrian consulate had a big cellar, and my husband made it shellproof by fixing sandbags under the ceiling and on the floor above it.

"I furnished it as well as I could with strips of carpet and draperies, but we had no fire at all and were often forced to sit in the dark, as we feared to burn the last of the petroleum, while the air foul and dark.

"We fixed up a drain pipe to communicate with the open air, but the atmosphere was not much improved.

"Immense spiders, with backs as large as my hand, infested the cellar and made the children afraid to go to sleep, but we had to stay down there, as the bombardment continued day and night without more than slight intermission for six weeks.

"A sudden whizz would be heard, and we knew that a shell was coming whistling through the air and that it might explode anywhere. The people who had emerged from their confinement to get a breath of fresh air would dmake a bolt for their cellars.

"Most of the Europeans had to dig pits, which were made shellproof by piling sandbags at the mouth. We felt fairly secure in our cellar until one day a shell exploded within two yards of where we were seated. The French consulate was greatly damaged by the projectiles, while the Russian consulate was razed to the earth.

"For the last few weeks we had nothing to eat except bread, which was baked in the consulate kitchen under considerable difficulty. There was sufficient of that until the last."

THE DEATH OF A ROSE

At Rosehill, that lovely plantation home where almost every flower and shrub has its own bit of sentiment, there is a rosebush which begins with the first touch of spring to turn golden with yellow blossoms, blossoms which throughout the summer days fill the air with fragrance and beauty.

The rosebush was named for one of the sweetest visitors who ever found Rosehill all that a southern home should mean to the guests entertained within its hospitable walls.

Sunny haired, sunny tempered, sunny hearted, it was no wonder that when the rosebush put forth its blooms, it suggested the girl who watched its budding. Today the garden at Rosehill is full of blooms, pink ones, white ones, red ones, and among them those golden ones named for Kittie T.

In the garden of life there is one flower missing, and the friends who knew and loved her have now only the memory of her, a memory which will linger like the fragrance of the roses that are gone, roses that seem more than ever to typify the summer of her short life.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BED TIME

By Thornton W. Burgess

(Copyright, 1913, by J. G. Lloyd.)

Fiddle, faddle, feedle, fuddle!
Was there ever such a muddle?
Fuddle, feedle, faddle, fiddle!
Who is there will solve the riddle?

Here was the Laughing Brook laughing no longer. Here was the Smiling Pool smiling no longer. Here was a brand new pond deep in the Green Forest. Here was a wall of logs and bushes and mud called a dam built by some one whom nobody had seen. And here was Grandfather Frog asking Jerry Muskrat if his big cousin had come down from the north, when Jerry didn't even know that he had a big cousin.

"I—I haven't any big cousin," said Jerry when he had quite recovered from his surprise at Grandfather Frog's question.

"Chugarum!" exclaimed Grandfather Frog, and the scornful way in which he said it made Jerry Muskrat feel very small. "Chugarum! Of course you've got a big cousin in the north! Do you mean to tell me that you don't know that, Jerry Muskrat?"

Jerry had to admit that it was true that he didn't know anything about that big cousin. If Grandfather Frog said that he had one it must be so, for Grandfather Frog is very old and very wise, and he knows a great deal. Still it was very hard work for Jerry to believe that he had a big cousin of whom he had never heard.

"Did—did you ever see him, Grandfather Frog?" Jerry asked.

"No!" snapped Grandfather Frog. "I never did, but I know all about him. He is a great worker, is this big cousin of yours, and he builds dams like this one we are sitting on."

"I don't believe it!" cried Billy Mink. "I don't believe any cousin of Jerry Muskrat's ever built such a dam as this. Why, just look at that great tree trunk! No one but Farmer Brown or Farmer Brown's boy could ever have dragged that there. You're crazy, Grandfather Frog. Just plain crazy." Billy Mink sometimes is very disrespectful to Grandfather Frog.

"Chugarum!" replied Granfather Frog. "I'm pretty old, but I'm not too old to learn as some folks seem to be," and he looked very hard at Billy Mink. "Did I say that that tree trunk was dragged here?"

"No," replied Billy Mink, "but if it wasn't dragged here how did it get here? You are so smart, Grandfather Frog, tell me that!"

Grandfather Frog blinked his great goggly eyes at Billy Mink as he said, just as if he was very, very sorry for Billy: "Your eyes are very bright and very sharp, Billy Mink, and it is a great pity that you have never learned how to use them. That tree wasn't dragged here; it was cut so that it fell right where it lies." As he spoke Grandfather Frog pointed to the stump of the tree, and Billy Mink saw that he was right.

But Billy Mink is like a great many other people; he dearly loves to have the last word. Now he suddenly began to laugh.

"Ha, ha, ha! Ho, ho, ho!" laughed Billy Mink. "Ho, ho, ho! Ha, ha, ha!"

"What is it that is so funny?" snapped Grandfather Frog, for nothing makes him so angry as to be laughed at.

"Do you mean to say that anybody but Farmer Brown or Farmer Brown's boy could have cut down such a big tree as that?" asked Billy. "Why that would be as hard as to drag the tree here."

"Jerry Muskrat's big cousin from the north could do it, and I believe he did," replied Grandfather Frog. "Now that we have found the cause of the trouble in the Laughing Brook and the Smiling Pool what are we going to do about it?"

"The Importance of Being Earnest," which will be presented by a clever cast from the Players' club Tuesday evening at the Grand, is one of the brightest and most sparkling creations of that master of words, Oscar Wilde. The cast chosen includes a number of players who have already won laurels before the footlights and several new and gifted acquisitions who will make their ret how. The above pictures were taken at a dress rehearsal when a splendid idea was gained of the work of the actors which promises a brilliant success. The players shown in the above are Mrs. John Marshall Slaton, Mrs. William Owens, Miss Hildreth Burton Smith, Mr. Lamar Hill, Mr. Marsh Adair.

Rome Social News

ROME.—A beautifully arranged program was rendered Monday morning in the college chapel by the alumnae of Shorter college. Such talented musicians as Miss Alida Printup, violinist, Mesdames Sam Gentry and Edward Proctor, vocalists, Misses Glover and Miss Rebekah Meyerhardt, pianists, were participants in one of the most artistic concerts given in Rome during this season.

Mrs. Katherine Hopkins Chapman, of Selma, Ala., who was charmingly introduced by Mrs. Ethel Hillyer Harris, was the speaker of the morning, adding new laurels to her past honors.

A delightful occasion was the alumnae banquet given Tuesday evening at Shorter college which brought to a close a week of unusual interesting events in Rome's pride educational institution. A large gathering of alumnae from many states in the southland were present to honor their alma mater. Miss Cordelia Veal, the president of the alumnae, with tactful graciousness, presided, bringing responses most interesting from Miss Eunice Ragsdale, class president of 1913; Miss Sheibley, a former president; Mrs. Chapman, alumnae orator, Dr. Geisel and President Van-Hoose.

A most creditable rendition of Shakespeare's play, "As You Like It," by the class of expression under the talented teacher, Miss Eugenia Ampenaugh, was greatly enjoyed by a large audience gathered Tuesday afternoon in Shorter's forest, when an open air theater furnished the setting for the scenes.

Mrs. Julian Cumming, Mrs. Sam Powers and Mrs. Charles Goetchius were joint hostesses at a large reception on Thursday for Mrs. Charles Woodruff and her guests.

Mrs. Woodruff is one of Rome's beloved matrons who with her daughter, Miss Sara, and young son, Master Bruce, will leave Rome to join Mr. Woodruff, who has recently accepted a position of trust at Hopkinsville, Ky.

Miss Frances Randle is visiting in Gadsden.

Miss Marjorie Richardson is visiting at High Point, N. C.

Mrs. W. K. Moody, of Atlanta, is visiting Mrs. Hiram Hill.

Mr. Roy Stewart attended the reunion in Chattanooga.

Mrs. Leila Hill Wright is visiting in Atlanta.

Miss Martha Peets, of Cedartown, is the guest of Mrs. Garlington.

Rockmart Social News

ROCKMART.—On Thursday afternoon Miss Marion Fambrough, assisted by Mrs. Lamar McCallom and Miss Ruth Trammell, entertained the friends of Miss Hermie Lane, a June bride-elect, with a linen shower. One of the most enjoyable features was the contest on "My Ideal Man," the prize being won by Mrs. J. A. Fambro, who presented it to the honoree. Mrs. V. E. McBryde, Miss Vail and Miss Trammell rendered several numbers of reading and music, after which refreshments were served, saving for the last the display of gifts, which arrived in a large United States mail box by parcel post.

Among the social affairs being given for Miss Lane, whose marriage to Mr. T. G. Selman will take place in June, was the kitchen shower given by Miss Ruth Adair Saturday afternoon. The house was artistically decorated with quantities of pink roses and foliage. A question contest was enjoyed, in which the prize was won by Mrs. Tom Clements and presented to the bride-elect. To the strains of the wedding march, the many gifts, which had been made into a cook, were brought in, and Miss Lane dismembered with pleasure the personage whose different parts, from the cap and apron to the broom and mop, would play an important role in her future culinary achievements. Delicious punch and an ice course were served, little Miss Hazel Adair presiding at the bowl.

Miss Florence Hubbard, of Atlanta, spent the week-end with home folks.

Mr. T. H. Selman, of Douglasville, visited his son, Mr. T. G. Selman, this week, and they attended the reunion in Chattanooga together.

Miss Caro Foster has returned from a visit in Birmingham.

Miss Anne Phinizy spent several days last week in Rome with her aunt, Mrs W. F. Miller.

Mr. E. C. Kingsbery attended the I. O. O. F. grand lodge in Savannah this week.

Miss Mary Lizzie Edwards and Miss Irene Tripps, of Taylorsville, are visiting Miss Alma McGinnis.

The Almighty Dollar With a Hole In It

We all like to think that our own dollar is sound and worth 100 cents. If someone tries to pass us a dollar with a hole in it, or one plugged with lead, we make an emphatic protest.

And yet some of us go along, day by day, letting each of our dollars buy us an average of about 70c apiece.

All of which comes from the unthrifty American habit of careless spending, or, in other words, buying things in a hurry without thought and consideration.

In a new and bountiful country like ours it is a natural result of too much prosperity.

There is, however, a growing class of people who realize that it pays well to think as they buy. To all such we recommend the advertising pages of THE JOURNAL, which offer reliable information and suggestion to intending purchasers.

Golfing Stars Of the South In Big Meet

Montgomery Country Club the Scene of 1913 Tournament. All Cities Are to Be Represented by Star Players

Here is a golf story from Augusta thtt is true and sets at rest all doubt that a golf ball can be driven farther than it can be thrown, even by a dub.

The story is especially interesting to Atlantians, because the principals in the play are well known here in the social and business world. Even without divulging their names, members of the Athletic, the Capital City and the Piedmont Driving clubs can spot the two participants from this simple description:

One is a well-known real estate and bond dealer and the other is equally as prominent in the insurance field.

A few days ago they were gathered about the "nineteenth" hole, situated in the grill room of the Country club, of Augusta. Neither of them is a golfer, but with them were a few of the best players in the city.

Arguments have occasionally been known to emanate from a golf conversation, especially among those of the uninitiated. The insurance man opined that he could throw a ball from tee to green around the eighteen holes of the course in a less number of throws than one could drive the pills.

The real estate dealer took him up and no time was lost in getting to the first tee. The gallery that followed them was larger than ever before seen on the course, even during the finals of a championship match.

The match was intensely exciting because of its closeness. The final score was one up for the man with the driver. He covered the three and a half miles in 93 strokes. The insurance man took an even hundred throws.

ERRORS AND HITS THAT WON GAMES

Harmon, for St. Louis, was hit freely yesterday, and Chicago got away with the game, 4 to 2. All of the catchers of the St. Louis team were crippled, and an old-timer, Heine Peitz, was lifted the bat. He caught a good game, twice pegging out Zimmerman, who tried to steal. Kometchy, the big first baseman for the St. Louis team, got three hits out of four times at the plate. Zimmerman was there with the old eye and got two hits out of three times up.

Two bases on balls, a stolen base and a single gave the Detroit Tigers the victory over Chicago yesterday by the small score of 1 to 0. It was a pitcher' battle all the way through between Hall and Scott. Ty Cobb was out of the game on account of the illness of his wife. He was called before the game started and left on the next train for Detroit. Both hurlers were very scarce on both sides. Chicago getting four, while the Tigers took seven for their share.

Myers, the big catcher for the Giants, was instrumental in defeating the Cincinnati team yesterday, he getting three hits out of three trips to the plate. New York played rings around the Ohio bunch and finally beat them, 4 to 1. There was nothing doing for the Cincinnati boys after the sixth. Marquard was unhittable, letting them down with nine scattered hits. DeVore, center field for Cincinnati, was also there with the strong arm stunt, he poling out three hits out of four times up.

Cleveland and St. Louis broke even in their battles yesterday, Cleveland winning the first by the score of 6 to 1 and losing the second, 9 to 3. The first win for the Cleveland team made their ninth straight victory, but Baumgardner had them going in the second game and they were very scarce on both sides, Chicago getting four, while the Tigers took seven for their share.

It wouldn't be fair to Nashville to say that the Crackers played in hard luck yesterday, but there was just a tinge of the old "Miss Fortune" there. After the game was won and Musser had only given up three hits, Schwartz, in a moment of desperation, sent in a man that has got lumbago and the man accidentally hit the ball over the fence and therefore, handed the Crackers the greatest surprise of the season. The Crackers were there with the goods all the way through until that fatal ninth and then the let-up came.

The Pels handed the Billies one yesterday by the score of 6 to 2. The game was won on the combination plan, the Pels' hits and the Billies' errors gave the Montgomery boys an easy victory. Jantzen, for the Billikens, knocked a home run to deep center, this being the feature of the game.

Liebhardt, the iron man of the 1906 Memphis team, donned a uniform yesterday and though he pitched good ball he lost his game to the Gulls by the score of 6 to 2. Errors on the part of the Turtles was the cause of his defeat. Cavet, pitching for the Gulls, got two hits out of three times up and pitched good ball besides.

COBB'S WORK

Cobb did not get to play Sunday in the game against the Chicagos. He was called to Detroit just before the game on a message that stated that his wife was seriously ill with pneumonia, therefore, stands the same, although the chances are that if he had played it and had taken a big jump, as Sunday is Cobb's long suit, his lucky day as it were. It is not known how sick Mrs. Cobb really is, but the best wishes of every fan in the country are for her immediate recovery. Cobb's average so far this year is:

HAL CHASE,

Chase Traded To White Sox

Game's Greatest First Sacker Will Now Aid Manager Jimmy Callahan

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, June 2.—First Baseman Hal Chase has been traded to the Chicago White Sox in exchange for Second Baseman Rollie Zeider and First Baseman Borton, Manager Frank Chance, of the New York American league team, announced last night.

Chance said he had canvassed all the the American league teams before making the trade. He explained that while he considered Chase a great first baseman, Hal had fallen off in his batting to such a degree that a change of some kind was compulsory.

It was announced that Chance himself would play first base regularly for the locals beginning tomorrow, and might use Borton in the outfield. Zeider probably will be played at second.

Chance has had his eye on Zeider ever since assuming management of the New Yorks. Borton hit .371 for Chicago in 31 games last year. Zeider and he will report here Tuesday morning. Chase, notified today of the deal, received instructions to report to the White Sox at once.

Chase, oldest member in point of service on the New York Americans, joined the team in 1905. Regarded by probably the majority of baseball observers as one of the greatest first basemen since the game began and once a hard hitter, he has been of late an uncertain batter. He was taken from the ranks and made manager of the team in the latter part of 1910 season, succeeding George Stallings, and remained at the head of the club the following year. Harry Wolverton was his successor.

Chase has been unfortunate in many ways, having frequently experienced long spells of sickness and being out of the game often through injuries.

McDowell, the new outfielders from the University of Alabama, may play with Montgomery today.

Atlanta Best At Scoring; Hard Hitting

Tommy Long Is Making History in League This Season, Sunday Ball in Nashville Is Sure–Schwartz Going Good

During the week just closed the race for the Southern league pennant became closer, the margin between the teams now being microscopic. Mobile continues to lead with New Orleans on the bottom, with the other clubs so closely bunched that it is hard to distinguish which has any big edge.

One of the features of the race is the way the Nashville club is holding its own. With the start of the season it was predicted that Manager Schwartz would be right in the running, but until the past ten days it began to appear as if this confidence was misplaced. But the Vol bunch has now come into its own and with the hurlers going a bit above their form, Schwartz promises to make it a bit interesting for all rivals.

The hurlers are having a rather hard time of it controlling the hitters, who are going better than usual. Every team has two or three slapstick artists who are poling the pill for fair, among whom are Long and Smith of Atlanta. During the week just closed Robertson, of Mobile, hit for an average of .639, Long for .455, Smith for .444 and Sloan for .481. This slightly bootsted the average of each.

At run scoring the Atlanta players seem to be going mighty fine. Long leads the league with 39 runs in 43 games, with Jacobson second and Alperman third and Smith fourth. Davy Callahan, an ex-Cracker, is then in order, the Pel-Cracker-Vol now playing grand ball.

Sunday baseball has at last won a victory in Nashville and the Vols are likely to stage these affairs often. The second attempt at Sunday ball this season was made on Sunday, when the Atlanta club was played, and it worked most successfully. There was no hint of interference ,and good crowds can be counted upon whenever ra Sunday game is played.

MENAFEE MAY BE MANAGER

CHARLESTON, S. C., June 2.—George Needham, manager, and Horace Milan, outfielder, were released by the Charleston club of the South Atlantic league. Gould Menafee, catcher, has been offered the manager's berth.

Milan is a brother of Clyde Milan, of the Washington Senators.

Checker Stars Will Play Here

The Southern Checker association is to hold its annual convention in this city on the 5th and 6th of August. This is the sixth annual tournament and will be attended by players from all over the south. A great deal of interest is being taken in the coming event by all lovers of this great game that requires the absolute concentration of the mental faculties. That there will be something doing every minute of the time is a sure thing.

Tennessee is calculating on getting away with first honors this year. They are banking on a dark horse in the person of a Memphis boy who, it is said to be a second Bobby Yates. He is a wonderful player and all true Tennesseans are backing on this boy to win for the state up the way.

Among others who will enter the tournament will be Andrew Brown, noted Scotch player who is now located at Mount Airy, N. C. He is one of the best players in the state, and will make somebody hustle for the championship. Fishburn, of South Carolina, three times winner of the event, will be in all probability in the line up when the referee calls the players to do business. Allen, of Tennessee, who has it laws attracts attention for the novel will also be entered.

One of the features of the tournament will be the blindfold exhibition that will be given for the benefit of the spectators. The person is blindfolded and then plays from a full board. This is one of the supreme tests of the checker player and tells whether he has won the event for the past two years, studied the game faithfully or not.

DISCIPLINE MAIN FEATURE OF WORK IN PRISON LEAGUE

The pennant race among the eight clubs in the United States Penitentiary Baseball league in this city is now two months old and has developed as many surprises as the fights in the major leagues of the national game. The "Giants," winners last year at the penitentiary, are no better than fourth, with a percentage of .500, while "Athletics" are in the "cellar," with not a victory to their credit. The race at the present time is between a team known as the "Hustlers" and the "Tigers," both with a clean record of victories, the "Hustlers" having one to the good on the "Tigers."

"Old Reliable," star pitcher for the "Giants," who won 15 out of 16 games last season, was hurt last Saturday, and this has almost put the "Giants" out of the race. At the time of his injury "Old Reliable," who is also known as "Black Matty" had reached the last inning for a no-hit game, while the team back of him had piled up eight runs. "Old Reliable's" substitute allowed nine runs to cross the plate.

"Good Words," the prison paper, makes a feature of baseball and has a sporting editor with a thoroughly up-to-date style. This is the way "Good Words" describes the game mentioned above:

"Now for the game of the season. Again the mighty Giants hit the dust, and it was the despised Pirates who laid them low. Up to the last inning 'Old Reliable' had a no-hit game and the score stod 8 to 1 in its favor. In stopping a hard hit grounder he hurt his pitching hand, and 'Nick' essayed to finish. Things broke loose. It was a tidal wave. The Pirates, placing hit after hit over second, scored three runs. More hits, and then Register No. 5833, with the bases intoxicated, hits over the right field bank and everybody scores. The Giant's captain goes into the box and pitching could not be denied, and old '15,' the Pirates' fifty-year-old captain, places a hit over shortstop, and the score is tied. The Giants retire a man and fight gallantly, but the Pirates, playing the back flag, pushed over the winning run."

On the general subject of baseball "Good Words" says:

"Prison ball may kill interest in some lines of thought, but the genus 'fan' lives, grows and has his being here, just as the fanti outside. The men behind the who keep the 'dope' of the prison league, and others who have the records of the big leagues at their fingues' end. Many of the officers are baseball 'bugs,' and the results of the games in the American, National and Southern leagues are telephoned to the prison every evening. Some of the clerks make copies and distribute them to the various departments, and soon it is known all over the institution."

"The prison league plays under American league rules. The president is Deputy William Hawk. He has to decide a protested game recently, and ordered it played over. The Prison league recognizes the waiving and releasing of players from the different teams, and every question known to league ball comes up for settlement.

"Ban Johnson, the dominating disciplinarian who rules the American league," has nothing on our president," says "Good Words." "Sully and Jack spend part of each afternoon at the ball park and keep the grounds in good condition, and also make needed improvements. The scorer and sporting editor appreciate the new press box built for them."

THREE INDIANS ARE NOW STARS IN THE TWO MAJOR LEAGUES

EDWARD BENDER.

JOHN MEYERS.

GEORGE JOHNSON.

Major league baseball contains three great Indian stars in Bender, of the Athletics, Meyers, of the Giants, and Johnson, of the Red Legs.

Most famous of the trio is the cool, crafty, keen-sighted Bender, who has helped Connie Mack to two world's championship and more league titles.

Bender, when in condition, which is one of the most dangerous pitchers in the world. He knows every batter's strength and weakness. His control, his speed, his curves and, better than all, his brain make him a veritable marvel of the mound. His work against the Giants in 1911 in the big series was truly superlative. As the peanut boy said, "Dere eatin' outen the chief's mitt."

Meyers, the catcher, is not of the Bender type. He is not a brilliant scintillating gem like the famous Chippewa. Meyers is a California Mission Indian; he is a mechanical catcher, but will never be a Buck Ewing or a Billy Sullivan; as a hitter he stands high always batting in the .300 class and once missing the position as league leader by one point.

Johnson is a new comer in fast company this year, but is regarded as a $10,000 pitcher. The White Sox had him, but asked waivers and Joe Tinker laid claim to his services for Cincinnati, for which team his spit ball has won a majority of the games he has pitched. Johnson is considered the best man on the Cincy staff.

GIANT CLUB HITS STRIDE

Off Day Monday For Crackers

Phillies Have Slumped During Past Week, While Athletics Have Increased Lead–Yanks Slump Deeper

At last the hard-working Crackers will have a day to loaf in. Today they will put on the Panamas and blue serges and go forth on to the boulevards and avenues of Nashville and see what's doing. The Crackers have an off-day and there will be no game today, for the game that was due to have been played today was played yesterday in order to satisfy the big Sunday crowds, and therefore today will be a rest day.

Of course, it is a known fact that the Crackers do not like to rest, but when the management imposes suc ha hardship upon the and the local boys always stand up under the hardship like men. The team played in a streak of real 'disappointment on Sunday's game and the rest today will do them good. Too much consistent playing made the fellows "edge," and a rest and a few bottles of the old cooling fluid make them fight that much harder when they do get back in the harness. The Crackers will play Tuesday and Wednesday in Nashville and will open a threegame series with the Lookout son Thursday. The whole team is going good, and the games starting with Thursday should be some of the best that have been seen on the local diamond.

NEW YORK, June 2.—During a week of baseball play featured by extra innings, postponed and double-header games, the two Philadelphia clubs maintained their role of pacemakers in the pennant races. An analysis of the play for the seven days ending with Saturday's contests discloses, however, that while the Athletics increased their lead by thirty-seven points, their city representatives in the National league slumped eighty-three points, and but for a big lead, gained earlier in the season, would at present be in immediate danger of being passed by their rivals from Greater New York.

The real sensation of the week was the playing of the Cleveland club in the junior league, and the Cincinnati clan in the National organization. The Naps traveled at a 1.000 clip, gaining 150 points in percentage. During this run Pitcher Falkenberg scored his ninth consecutive victory of the season.

The Cincinnatis won six out of seven games played and while still in eighth position, managed to pick up 100 points.

Probably the most important feature of the week in baseball, so far as the senior league is concerned, was the return to form of the New York Giants. The Brooklyn team still holds its position as runnerup to the Phillies, but again an early season lead stood the Superbas in good stead.

CUBS STAND STILL.

The Chicago Nationals did no better and no worse. Three victories and three defeats was their portion. St. Louis and Boston acted as foils to the top rankers, each team losing all but one contest during the seven days of play. The week's play in the National league showing games played, won, lost, runs, hits, errors and men left on bases, follows in tabulated form:

Club.	P.	W.	L.	R.	H.	E.	LB.
Philadelphia	5	1	4	23	53	4	36

xOne tie game.

On the Ban Johnson circuit the Philadelphias, Clevelands and Washingtons were the only teams to profit by the many opportunities offered during a busy week. The Mackmen played at a .875 clip, Cleveland 1.000 and Washington .500. The remaining five clubs lost more than 50 per cent of their games.

The New Yorks made last place safe by dropping five straight. The only redeeming features were Russell Ford's eight-inning, no-hit showing against the Athletics and the all-round improvement at shortstop, where Peckinpaugh now holds forth. The trade of Chase to Chicago for Zeider and Borton, announced last night, was a surprise which many New York fans welcomed in the belief that the change would strengthen the home team where it has been weakin hitting and in infield play. The progress of the American league pennant race during the past week is shown in the following figures:

Atlanta Lost Hurling Duel

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 2.—The Crackers almost got there in their game with the Vols on Sunday. In fact they came so near getting there that it was conceded to be a Cracker victory until the grand stands were emptying when Schwartz, the Nashville manager, called upon "Lumbago" Noyes to do a little batting in the ninth. He did and the Crackers lost. Noyes hit the ball to the top of the right field fence, the ball hitting a paling and bouncing back into the overflow crowd. He got only two bases on account of ground rules. A steal, a free pass to Lindsay and a slide under Chapman tied the score and left a man on second. Perry then came up and sent one to the outer gardens for a couple of sacks and won the game.

Musser, the best on the Cracker staff, was nothing grand but had allowed only three hits up to the ninth and then his weakening coupled with a letup by the whole team gave the home team the victory. It was a good game and there was something doing every minute of the time. Both teams played great ball and there were many thrills throughout the game.

Indians Hold To Top Round

Two teams in the South Atlantic league, Savannah, at the top of the percentage column, and Albany at the bottom, show a gain in standing as the result of the six games of the past week. Columbus and Macon split even on the two series, while Jacksonville dropped four games, and Charleston consistently acquired defeat in every contest.

As the result, the interest in the pennant race has waned in favor of the battle for the cellar. Savannah leads the field by a .200 point margin that will take long to overcome, but Albany has climbed to .333, while Charleston dropped to .243, and the battle between these two ought to furnish a merry scramble in the series of this week.

Savannah won four games of four excellent games during the week, Pool allowing one hit to Jacksonville, Arrington two hits to the same team, and Adams and Robertson, two each in games with Charleston.

The following table will show the work of the six teams at a glance, giving games played, won and lost, runs, hits and errors for the week:

	GP.	W.	L.	R.	H.	E.

Polo Player Better

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y., June 2.—Devereaux Milburn, back on the American polo team which is to defend the international cup next week against a British team, had recovered somewhat today from the injuries he received when his pony stumbled and kicked him Saturday. At the home of Harry Payne Whitney, to which Mr. Milburn was removed, he had rested most of the day in bed and was walking about his room.

Whether Mr. Cilburn will be able to take his place in the match is said to be played June 10, cannot yet be stated.

Walsh vs. Kilbane

BOSTON, Mass., June 2.—Jimmy Walsh, of this city has accepted an offer from the Queen City club of Cincinnati to box Johnny Kilbane in that city on July 4. Kilbane and Walsh fought to a draw a year ago.

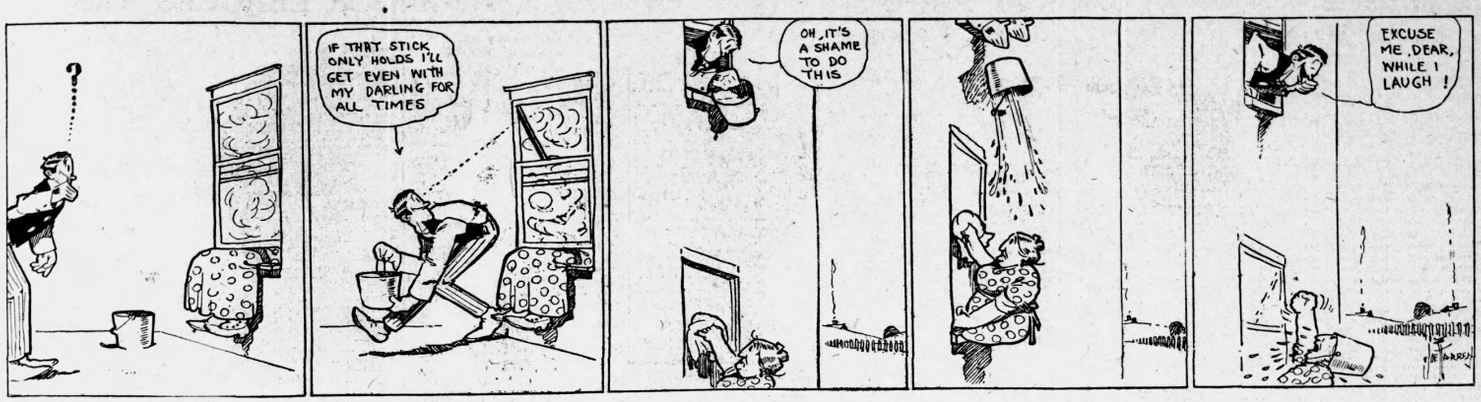
Crackers Idle Monday---Play Two More Games With Vols

FOR ONCE HANK PUT IT OVER ON CAMILLA ---BY FARREN



THE SPORTLIGHT
BY GRANTLAND RICE

THE FIGHTING GAME.

(Dedicated to the firstclass in White Hopes.)

Four hundred pounds of surplus flesh
Mixed in the essence of a smear,
And that, old top, not over fresh
From hoof to cauliflower ear;
A noble race bereft of kick
With science missing from the frame;
Hey—fetch the olive branches quick
For White Hope heroes of the game.

Yes, hail again these noble Hopes
And bind the laurel of each brow
See how they mount the sagging ropes
As graceful as the humble cow;
But though the saggy scene is stale
With stuff that very quickly sours,
As long as they can cop the kale
Is it their fault—or is it ours?

As several have remarked from time to time the Giants and Pirates are the class of the National league. But whether firstclass or third was not mentioned in the original dispatches. Their only apparent weakness to date has been inability to win. Beyond which they are incarnate.

EVEN T. R. WAS UNEQUAL TO THIS—

Under the Wilson administration the Boston Braves tore off four straight from Pittsburg and a double-header from the Giants. If this isn't downward revision of luxuries in favor of the ultimate consumer and the masses we have studied the tariff all these years in vain.

A FINAL WARNING.

(The quality of mercy in us is not strained, but if F. P. A. doesn't summon his contribs from this page we will not be responsible a day longer for what may happen.)

Said Birdie Cree to Harold Chase
"We've got some darned hard games to face;"
"For you, perhaps, but not for me"—
Said Harold Chase to Birdie Cree.

Said Frankie Chance to Charlie Frank,
"Your Southern leaguers, kid, are rank;"
"Aw, give your ball club a glance,"
Said Charley Frank to Frankie Chance.

RIPPER.

(Manager of New Orleans Southern league tail-enders.)

Said Truxton Hare to Callahan,
"Why don't you slip this Walsh the can?"
"I kinder think the sucker's there"
Said Callahan to Truxton Hare.

K. J. L.

It may be quite different by the time these lines appear to print, but as they are being written we can understand now how Owen Seaman felt in the midst of this—

"How can I expect to link
Sweetness when the icebergs clink
As they float about the ink,
Knocking up together?
Only polar bears could think
In this sort of weather."

Griff and his Senators are not pounding along as swiftly as they started but for all that they are still several games beyond their stride of late May in 1913. The only disturbing thought is that winning another series of sixteen straight is not always a simple clerical problem. And not even Johnson can win a pennant without help.

"Is Johnson," writes H. L., "a better pitcher than Cobb is a batter?"

Concerning the two-foot putt we are willing to let it go at a halved hoel, right or wrong.

The arrival of the first day of June will find the Yanks without a victory established at home. Hence the origin of that famous poem—

"What is so rare as a day in June
When the Yanks win a game at home?"

The only distressing thought attached to this is that June has but 30 days. For while "no man can tell what a day will bring forth," past performances at least entitles him to a guess.

EMORY STUDENTS WORKING ON INTERCOLLEGIATE SPORT

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

OXFORD, Ga., June 2.—"Intercollegiate athletics—greater Emory" are sentiments which hosts of Emory students are expressing by wearing campaign buttons in the college colors, blue and gold, that are being given out by the students' committee in charge of the campaign to secure intercollegiate athletics at the meeting of the board of trustees of Emory in June. The students are fast securing the buttons and are sending them out to their relatives and friends who are identified with Emory in some way.

These buttons will be distributed among the alumni when they begin arriving next Friday for the annual commencement, and every possible means to arouse the enthusiasm of the alumni to the highest pitch is being devised.

Intercollegiate athletic day has been selected for Monday, June 9, as it is very probable that the question will be submitted to the trustees on that date. A general call for alumni has been sent out to attend commencement and especially be present on the gala day which they are anticipating for June 9th.

One of the most interesting and important sessions ever held by the trusteees is expected to take place when they convene during commencement. Numbers of matters will very likely be brought up, although it is expected that the one big question will be the petition for intercollegiate athletics.

SUMS UP WORK.

The students' committee is busy summing up the fruits of their work during the past three months, and it is expected they will have some interesting facts and surprising data to present to the board. They are making no claims and express no confidence, only stating that they hope to convince the board to their attitude of the question by facts and statements from men who are dear to Emory.

The opponents of intercollegiate athletics are also expected to be ready for the debate on the question when it arises. Some of the most prominent educators in the south are Emory men and are strenuously opposing the move of the students, while they have opponents in persons of as great esteem in the educational world.

May Not Recover

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 2.—Lee Dunning, mechanician of the Mason automobile which turned over in the 500-mile race at the speedway on Memorial day, is not improving at the Methodist hospital. Dunning's left lung was injured when three of his ribs were broken. An X-ray examination was to have been made today, but his physicians thought it inadvisable on account of his condition.

Carpentier is Now Champion

(By Associated Press.)

GHENT, Belgium, June 2.—George Carpentier, the French heavyweight pugilist, won the heavyweight championship of Europe by knocking out Bombardier Wells, the British champion, in the fourth round. Carpentier himself took the count of nine in the first round and was again sent to the floor in the second.

In the third round the Frenchman discovered Bombadier's weak stomach, and showering blows in the mid-section, crumpled up the Englishman. He ended the fight with a right hand punch to the solar plexus just before the end of the fourth.

MORE SHIFTS FOR YANKS

NEW YORK, June 2.—Still further changes in the line-up of the New York Americans are being planned by Manager Frank Chance. The deal announced yesterday, whereby Borto and Zeider, the Chicago infielders, join the Yankees today, in exchange for the veteran, Hal Chase, and the recent engagement of Fockinpaugh, of Cleveland, for short stop, are believed by Chance to have gone far toward strengthening the infield.

"Another deal will be pulled off in a few days that will help us further," said Chance. "Caldwell will not be able to pitch any more, I fear, and I intend to make an outfielder of him. He is a natural hitter and is very fast on the bases. His arm will permit him to make long throws, but will not stand the strain in the box.

BULLISH BUREAU REPORT CAUSED RISE IN COTTON

Market in New York Closed 2 to 9 Points Higher Than the Previous Close

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, June 2.—Cotton opened steady at a decline of 12 points to 1 point lower caused over the local holiday and favorable weather reports from the south. There was considerable covering in advance of the government report due at midday, but offerings were heavy and the market held off to a net loss of 7 to 15 points early in the day trading with October and December contracts selling around the 11.90 level.

The market became comparatively quiet after the first half hour and prices ruled fairly steady at a net decline of from 6 to 7 points pending the government report. The official condition of 79.1 proved a shade under general expectations and prices immediately rallied with October contracts selling up from 10.96 to 11.17 and December 12 points above that figure.

After selling about eight to fourteen points still higher on the bullish government report, the cotton market became comparatively quiet but ruled very steady and within two or three points of the best.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, June 2.—Cotton futures opened steady at a decline of 6 to 9 points on lower cables and an extremely favorable weather map. Dry and warm weather was noted all over the cotton region and official forecasts at that time in from the belt over Sunday stated that the new crop was making great progress. Trading was restricted by the fact that the government's condition report was due at 11 o'clock. Moderate selling for short account was in evidence, but there was little buying for account. The end of the first half hour prices were 7 to 10 points under Friday's close.

The market was dull and fairly steady until 11 o'clock. At that time the trading months were 3 to 5 points under the last night's close. The condition figures of 79.1 per cent of the normal were a little under average expectations and caused a buying wave and a quick rise in prices. Bulls made no effort to press their advantage, else the advance would have been greater. The buying was chiefly by scared shorts and sent the trading months 7 to 14 points over the level at 11 o'clock and 4 to 9 points over Friday's closing quotations. Later the market was dull at a net rise of 4 to 5 points.

INTERESTING NEWS AND GOSSIP OF THE MARKETS

Weather Reports, Crop Advices, Expert Opinions and Newspaper Comment

COTTON GOSSIP

Washington local range forecast: Temperatures slightly above the occasional average in the gulf states and near or slightly below the average elsewhere during the next few days. Showers are predicted by the weather bureau in its weekly bulletin.

Generally fair weather is looked for, conditions favoring only local precipitation usually below normal.

A disturbance that is now over the Great Lakes will cause local rains and thunderstorms Monday in the eastern and northeastern states, and it will be followed by rising pressure and generally fair weather for the week end in the region east of the Rocky mountains. Another disturbance will develop Tuesday or Wednesday in the northwest and progress slowly southward, crossing the middlewest Thursday or Friday, attended by showers near the end of the week; this disturbance will be attended by local showers and thunderstorms and be followed by cooler weather."

Map: Rain in the cotton weather, partly cloudy to fair western states, local rains in eastern and Alabama, cloudy Carolinas, north Georgia fair, scattered showers elsewhere. Rains immediately Gulf. Warm weather throughout the belt, warm Dakotas.

Dallas wires: "Texas generally clear, hot; Oklahoma, generally fair, no rain reported."

Forecast:

Louisiana—Tonight and Tuesday fair.

West Texas—Tonight and Tuesday fair.

East Texas—Tonight and Tuesday fair, light, variable winds; Tuesday local showers.

Georgia and Alabama—Fair tonight and Tuesday.

Kentucky—Fair tonight and Tuesday.

Tennessee—Unsettled this afternoon; generally fair tonight and Tuesday.

Mississippi—Fair tonight and Tuesday.

South Carolina—Fair tonight and Tuesday. Showers this afternoon; Tuesday fair.

North Carolina—Fair tonight and Tuesday.

New Orleans—Cotton exchange will be closed Tuesday, June 3, on account of Jeff Davis' birthday.

Hicks was good seller July. Map was favorable and the forecast was fair. Crop was in good and the crowd were inclined to sell on bulges. Bulls had little to say. Most of the selling seemed to have cotton for sale and Wall street was also uptown crowd were said to be among the sellers.

Memphis—Market is remarkable example of how bulls make bullishness. Bulls fairly steady until 11 o'clock. At that time the trading months were 3 to 5 points under last night's close. The condition figures of 79.1 per cent of the normal were a little under average expectations and caused a buying wave and a quick rise in prices. Bulls made no effort to press their advantage, else the advance would have been greater. The buying was chiefly by scared shorts and sent the trading months 7 to 14 points over the level at 11 o'clock and 4 to 9 points over Friday's closing quotations. Later the market was dull at a net rise of 4 to 5 points

POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK

Georgia Has a Good Mine in the Growing of Alfalfa

ALFALFA is one thing that will make Georgia the richest agricultural state on the globe and pull the farmers out of debt if they will take up the growing of same. It has done so for any state that has given it attention, and as this state yearly pays the highest price for hay of any state in the union it can show such a great quantity of it, having bought more than $20,000,000 worth of hay last year, any one can readily see how important it is that we grow it here, and our lands being so naturally adapted to it with such long seasons gives us an opportunity to grow at least two tons per acre more and of a far better quality than most any other state in the Union.

There is scarcely a native family in the state that was raised anywhere in middle Georgia, especially among the wealthy class of people but that can well remember and recall the magnificent beds of lucerne that thirty-five to fifty years ago could be found in every good garden in the state of Georgia. I well remember when I was a boy four years old that my father as well as nearly every other person in Fort Valley, who had a nice garden, had the borders of most of the beds planted to lucerne. It was cultivated similar to sage or any plant in the garden. It was properly cared for and every afternoon large armfuls of this magnificent hay, three to five feet high, was cut for the family cow or horse, and it was to them usually what the best dessert is to the average family nowadays. Why many people have not kept this up is a mystery. It was at that time never looked upon as a hay or field plant, but as it has helped out of debt nearly every state in the Union which has taken up the growing of it it will certainly do so for Georgia. It is a duty every man owes to himself to start now and plant his place to alfalfa and continue until at least one-half or two-thirds of Georgia is turned into an alfalfa hay field.

I well remember when a boy, the largest truck gardener in Macon, Mr. Long, who had what is now one city block of residence in Macon, a truck garden. He raised and highly educated a large family off of the vegetables that he gre on this city squire. Four long rows of lucerne, two on each side of a drainage ditch in the center of this garden, furnished food for two horses and two cows that were kept on the place. Many an afternoon have I helped one of his boys cut a two-wheel cart with a large hay frame on it full of this magnificent food and fill the troughs for the horses and cows. These four rows practically supported the live stock that made the vegetables a good portion of the year, and enabled Mr. Long to devote most of his time to growing vegetables instead of the expensive way we are doing now, giving corn to feed our live stock on. I remember many gardens around Macon that had this lucerne and in nearly every instance, not only in that day and time, but at the present time this plant has shown the people a way to prosperity and save them hundreds of dollars that many are now spending for feed.

Probably the most successful dairyman in the state of Georgia today is Mr. Henry Miller, at Duluth, Ga. He has thirty-two acres of alfalfa and with fifty acres all told, planted to alfalfa and corn, he has in addition to some splendid Bermuda grass pastures, Mr. Miller has raised and maintains a herd of one hundred head of magnificent Jerseys, and from fifty-two of these cows, he is now selling in Atlanta about $1,500 worth of milk per month, and not over $2 per day is expended for cotton seed meal to balance the ration with. One can readily see what a large profit per month he is making and how easy it is to do. What he has done many others can do.

In Cobb county, in which is my home, at Smyrna, I have been growing and experimenting with alfalfa for thirteen years. Some of the first that was planted thirteen years ago is now doing well. In this county there are at least fifty or more people successfully growing alfalfa from a small patch to twenty-five or more acres. It is gradually spreading and another year will see thousands of acres planted to alfalfa in this county. One man, to my knowledge, in this county, shipped a carload of hay off of thirteen acres during the early part of May from his October planting, behind peas. This car of hay producing him about $400, and before the middle of June off of this same land he will market another car and five times during the year will this be repeated.

Yours very truly,

QUESTIONS ASKED AND ANSWERED.

QUESTION

Greensboro, Ga.

I enjoy your department in The Journal and now come to you for advice. Have been attempting to produce a new breed of chickens, a cross between the Buff Orpington and the Friesland. Have now some of the most beautiful birds. When the young chickens first get a feather they are pretty enough for millinery purpose. Have four hens and one male. Last week I noticed their experience when my health forbid me to care for them. Have a lot of young ones. Do you suppose any factor would like to purchase the enterprise and pay me the worth of them? Of course, I would want a price for them before I turned over them. I am sure. If you could interest some one, would be willing to pay you for the trouble if such was made. Could have them in condition by early fall, as the plumage is not good on the hens that have been sitting. My health and wanting to put our oldest child in college only prompts me to offer them for sale, as I feel sure they would be a good enterprise to bring in money. Or, would you consider the proposition yourself and produce a famous chicken for America?

A READER.

ANSWER.

*If you would advertise your chick*ens and fully describe the merits of their superior merit it is likely you could find a buyer for them. I could not use them myself, as I merely keep the three leading standard varieties and would not like to take on any others. I am sure, however, I am confident your chickens are handsome and could be made profitable. Someone may be interested in them if you will let them know. Now you have them by advertising them in The Journal, as you suggested they would be valuable for their plumage.

Joel Hurt Suggests Widening of Ivy Street to 65-Foot Thoroughfare and Writes Property Owners Urging This Improvement Before Repaving Job Is Completed—Large Residence Property on Highland Avenue Changes Hands

A movement is now afoot to have Ivy street widened before the repaving is completed.

Joel Hurt has written the property owners a letter pointing out the benefit of the widening, and moreover has suggested to the owners that they make Ivy street a retail thoroughfare, keeping it free of garages or other classes of business not retail.

His proposal is to make the street sixty-five feet wide, about fifteen feet wider than it is at present.

Awhile back a suggestion was made that the property owners could be induced to do away with the car line on Ivy street, leaving it open exclusively to other traffic, but that suggestion doesn't seem to have been acted on as yet.

said. "I am sure I want no duty on sewer pipe."

J. F. McMurray, an attorney of McAlester, Okla., and prominently identified with Indian legislation, has a contract with the Cherokee Indians for the sale of $35,000,000 worth of land, for which he is to receive 10 per cent. There is a movement in congress to annul his contracts.

Senator Bacon said he had not tried to influence members of the senate except in a general way to urge a reduction of tariff on articles of general use.

"I have not listened to a single man or heard a single argument on this tariff bill," he said. "I have received a great many letters and circulars.

"I have seen very much less effort to influence legislation in this bill than in previous *ones. It does not com*pare with the consideration of the Payne-Aldrich bill in that respect.

"No person had attempted to influence him improperly, Senator Bacon said, and he knew nothing of attempts to use money for lobbying purposes.

WHAT IS A LOBBYIST?

"I don't think a man who comes here to *represent an interest in which he him*self is concerned, to present arguments, is a lobbyist," said the senator, "neither do I think a lawyer who comes here in a legitimate way to represent a reputable industry is a lobbyist."

Senator Bacon knew of no recognized "lobbyist" giving dinners or social affairs seeking to influence legislation.

Senator Bacon concluded by testifying he had heard there were two "sugar" organizations in Washington, one for free sugar and the other against it.

Senator Bankhead was called, but did not respond. Senator Borah took the stand.

"No," was his answer to all questions as to whether he was interested in any industry, or represented professionally any industry affected by the tariff.

to receive their crosses of honor or

"I retired from my profession when I entered the senate," he said. The senator was a lawyer.

Harry Day and a Mr. McCarthy, of Idaho, he said, had talked to him about lead. Frank J. Hagenbarth and Dr. McClure, officials of the Wool Growers' association, in regard to the wool and several men from Louisiana in regard to sugar. The names of the latter he could not remember.

NO MONEY IN SIGHT.

Senator Borah said no one had attempted improperly to influence him, and he had no knowledge of the use of money. He told the lead and sugar men he thought the bill would pass as written, and it was not worth while to spend the time discussing it.

"I don't consider the men who called upon me as lobbyists," he added. "They were all men legitimately representing industries which they believed would be affected." He added he had seen "no lobbyists" at this session.

"Did you see them at former sessions?" asked Senator Reed.

"We all made up our minds about certain men that we believe are trying to influence legislation," he said.

Pressed for names Senator Borah said he regarded "the man mentioned by Senator Ashurst as interested in securing certain Indian legislation."

Senator Bradley testified he was not financially interested in the tariff bill. The only man who talked to him was Sid B. Reading, of Little Rock, Ark., who wanted to know if the income tax would apply to life fnsurance policies.

Senator Brandegee declared he had no interest in any concern manufacturing or handling anything affected by the tariff, no professional connection with others affected on the legislation and had not attempted to influence other senators on behalf of certain interests.

Of those who called on him Senator *Brandegee recalled Henry Hall, of Wil*limantville, Conn., a thread manufacturer; W. W. Skiding, of Stamford, and Cheney brothers, silk manufacturers, of South Manchester, Mass.

These and others, he said, argued that reduced duties would ruin their business.

The senator knew of no improper use of money or influence; knew of no lobbyist and of no expenditures of money to maintain a lobby.

SENATOR BRISTOW TALKS.

Senator Bristow gave a list of nearly a dozen men who called on him.

"It is my duty to hear all views and get all the information I can," said he.

F. C. Lowry, New York, "an employe of the Federal Sugar company," saw him in favor of free sugar. H. C. Oxnard, New York, saw him in favor of a tariff on sugar. W. D. Baldwin, Honolul; Jules Godchaux and E. F. Dickinson, Louisiana, also discussed sugar. H. W. McClure, Salt Lake City, came to his office in regard to wool. Henry Lasson, a Wichita miller, asked for an equalization of the wheat and flour rates; W. D. Baird, of Detroit, another caller, was an expert builder of beet sugar factories, and S. H. Cowan, Fort Worth, Tex., made the "usual argument against placing cattle on the free list."

"I think these men are all clean-minded and really believe in their cases," said the senator.

Senator Bristow knew of no use of money but supposed it was being "legitimately used" to pay for advertising and printed matter.

He considered it "perfectly legitimate business" for men interested in industries that might be affected to present their arguments to senators either personally or through attorneys.

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., June 2.—The Warm Springs hotel was formally opened Saturday night with a grand ball. The hotel was host last week to some 200 members of the Georgia Bar association, but not open to the general public until Saturday.

Mr. Hall is the new proprietor of the hotel, brought his entire working force with him from his Florida resort. The building has been thoroughly overhauled and repaired.

Considerable work has been done on the grounds and at the springs. In fact, everything has been done to make the place comfortable, attractive and inviting.

body was found, but there was no gunny sack there.

THEORY OF KILLING.

The theory of the defense will be, it is said, that after Mary Phagan got her pay envelope she immediately left the office on the second floor and proceeded down the stairs toward the street; that just as she reached the bottom, the negro, who was in hiding and who had seen her swinging a mesh handbag, stepped out from behind the boxes and struck her a blow on the head with a stick.

Attention will be called to the fact that the big doors leading to the street were closed, and it was entirely possible for the girl to have been felled without anyone outside on the street or anyone upstairs in the office being any the wiser.

Having knocked the girl down and rendered her unconscious, it will be contended, it is said, that the negro quickly pushed her through the elvator shaft, which was but six or eight feet to his left. Fearing that the girl may have recognized him and apprehending that she was not dead, the negro climbed down the ladder through the cubby hole and quickly tore off the hem of her underskirt, which he knotted around her neck, it being the most available instrument to check any possible outcry; after which he hunted around the basement and found a length of cord, which abounds in all parts of the factory.

Looping this cord around the girl's neck so that when it was pulled the knot would tighten, the negro dragged her back to the sawdust bin in the rear of the basement where her body was found, it will be contended.

When he went back to the elevator shaft he found her hat and her purse, it will be argued. He placed the purse in his pocket, took the hat and started back toward the rear of the basement. On the way he picked up one of the girl's slippers, which had come off while she was being dragged to her death, and the slipper he tossed on the trash pile by the boiler.

In the darkness of the elevator shaft he overlooked the parasol, which he had tossed down with the girl's body.

OBJECT OF NOTES.

With a view, it is said, to directing suspicion to other negroes employed in the factory, Conley wrote the two notes found near the body. The tablet paper upon which these were written, it will be asserted, can be found in all parts of the factory. One of them, the yellow order blank book, it will be claimed, belonged to an old discarded series and was more likely to be on the trash pile than in the office.

*The suggestion will, it is said, be ad*vanced that the negro first wrote the two line note which simply stated: "That long, tall black negro did it by his self." Conceiving the idea that a note directed to the girl's mother might further lift suspicion from him the negro then wrote the second, in which he referred to the long, tall black negro and the night watchman.

Once the negro got ready to leave the factory it will be asserted he found that Frank had gone to lunch and had locked the front doors. Then there was nothing left for him to do but pull the latch from the back basement door and make his escape from the factory through it.

BLOOD SPOTS EXPLAINED.

Little credence will, it is said, be placed by the defense in the alleged blood spots found near the dressing room door in the metal room on the second floor. It will be argued that these spots may or may not be blood. And to explain them if they are blood it will be shown that several times each week the employes cut their fingers and handle and file wounds frequently bleed on the floor.

It will, be asserted by witnesses, it is said, that large quantities of aniline, and paints resembling blood are used at the factory and that possibly the spots at the dressing room door are nothing more than paint.

To further strengthen this idea it will be pointed out that the negro claims to have first found the girl's body in the little alleyway near the women's lavatory, some fifty or seventy-five feet from the alleged blood marks, and yet not a spot of blood can be discovered there, although if the negro's story is true the body must have lain there for some time. Even admitting the truth of the negro's statements the defense will, it is claimed, call attention to the fact that the body remained at the dressing room door, where the negro says he dropped it, only so long as it required him to rush up to the front and call Frank to help him to the elevator with it. Therefore, it will be insisted if there was to have been any blood on the floor it would most likely have been at the spot where the body first fell and where it lay for so long.

Of course the above may not be the complete theory of the defense, but it is understood that the points set out will form the principal portions of the theory.

Frank Keeps Cheerful, Confident of Acquittal

Friends of Superintendent Leo M. Frank, who called upon him at the Fulton county jail Sunday, declare that they found him in excellent spirits. He patted several of his most intimate friends on the shoulder and advised them not to worry, declaring that everything would come out all right.

The indicted superintendent seemed to feel, it is said, that the affidavit of confession made by James Conley, the negro sweeper, sheds the first real light on the pencil factory tragedy, and he entertains the confident hope, it is said, that Conley will, under continued grueelling by the detectives, clear up every element of mystery surrounding the murder. When this is done Superintendent Frank expects, it is said, to be exonerated from all participation in or knowledge of the crime.

Frank reminded his friends that he had without reservation or evasion answered every question which had been put to him by the detectives and the coroner, and that up to date not a statement he made had been disproven.

He called the attention of his friends to the fact that after he returned to the factory at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of the murder he worked for hours making out a financial statement and asked them if they believed it possible for him to have gotten his mind on figures and calculations if he had even known there was a dead body in the basement, to say nothing of what would have been his state of mind if he was burdened with the guilt of a murder.

Conley Sticks to Story; To Be Questioned Again

For the first time since his arrest, three days after the murder of Mary Phagan, James Conley, the negro sweeper, was provided with clean clothing Monday morning. His wife brought the clothing to police headquarters. The negro asserts that this is the first change of clothes he has made since Friday, April 25.

Conley still sticks to his confession. He insists that he has told the full truth, and that all he had to do with the murder of the girl was to assist Frank in taking her body to the factory basement and to write the two alibi notes, which, he says, he wrote at Frank's dictation.

The negro continues to assert that he would like to face Frank and tell his story face to face with the indicted superintendent. Both Chief of Police Beavers and Chief Lanford are anxious that Frank be confronted with the negro.

Monday morning Chief Beavers telephoned the office of Luther Z. Rosser, chief counsel for Frank, it being his purpose to make formal request of Mr. Rosser for a meeting between Frank and the negro. Mr. Rosser was engaged at the court house and Chief Beavers announced that later in the day he would probably call upon Mr. Rosser in person and ask that the meeting be arranged.

The detectives hold to the opinion that Conley has told the truth in his confession, but Chief Lanford says that he will not discontinue his efforts to get further information from the negro.

"We will continue to question him from time to time," said the chief. "While we credit the negro's story as related in his affidavit we do not propose to rest upon our oars. What we want is the truth about this crime. We do not wish that an innocent man shall be prosecuted or punished, and if it could be shown to my satisfaction that Frank had nothing to do with the murder I would not hesitate to say so, regardless of public sentiment or my previous conclusions."

Detectives Seek Purse Carried by Girl

The detectives are continuing a vigorous search for the pocketbook of Mary Pragan, no trace of which has been found in the weeks which have passed since her murder on April 26.

It was learned Monday that detectives have carefully and systematically searched the home of James Conley, the negro sweeper, without finding the pocketbook nor the hat ribbon which is missing.

The detectives received reports that factory employes found the purse in the elevator a short time after the tragedy, but so far as can be learned these reports are without foundation.

INDICTMENT NOT LIKELY.

It has been reported that efforts will be made to indict Conley as an accessory after the fact of the murder at the special meeting of the Fulton county grand jury, which will be held on Tuesday. This is extremely improbable, as there is little chance of any court action on Conley's case until after the trial of Superintendent Frank.

Chief of Detectives Lanford declares that he is not worried over the disappearance of Mrs. Nina Formsby, the woman who made an affidavit to the effect that Frank called up her house a number of times between 10 p. m. on the evening of the tragedy.

Mrs. Formsby alleged that the factory superintendent wanted to secure a room.

Chief Lanford states that he will be able to produce the woman if she is needed. Mrs. Formsby is out of the city visiting friends, it is said.

Belles of Atlanta In Pictures Used By Players Club

When a swell young English bachelor's apartment is revealed on the stage of the Grand Tuesday evening, for the performance of the Players' club, a dozen or more striking photos of beautiful *girls—supposed to be Algernon Mon*crief's many loves—will be scattered on the table.

At one point in the first act of "The Importance of Being Earnest," Algernon, who is played by Lamar Hill, picks up these photos and glances over them endearingly. In reality they are pictures of some of Atlanta's best known society belles. They were just loaned, for use in the play, from the private collections of Lamar Hill, Marsh Adair and a few other Atlanta bachelors.

Many an opera glass next Tuesday night will be turned toward the photos, therefore!

By other members of the Players' club a great many of the furnishings for the scenes have been loaned. Silver tea sets have been brought to the Grand from the homes of Mrs. John Marshall Slaton and Mrs. Thomas B. Felder. China, linen and books have been lotned by Mrs. Thaddeus Horton, Mrs. Robert L. Cooney and other members of the club. The final dress rehearsal will be held Monday night at the Grand, in preparation for the presentation on Tuesday.
